Survivor Amurao

Nurse hid under bed

while eight friends were methodically slaughtered by intruder

CHICAGO (AP) — A young killer forced his way into a quiet residential dormitory early Thursday, bound nine student nurses, then dragged eight of them one by one into other rooms and methodically strangled or stabbed them.

The ninth escaped by crouching in terror under a bed.

"My friends are dead! Help! Help! I'm the only one left alive."

The girl, hysterical during a one-hour police interview, was able to give only a fragmentary description of what happened — and of the killer. She said she could identify him.

Chicago police, beleaguered by nights of racial turmoil in another part of the city, put 40 men to work

full-time on the case and said the force could be increased five-fold at a minute's notice. (See also Page 11.)

The survivor, Corazon Amurao, 23, an exchange student from The Philippines, told police the killer was a tall, blonde young man.

ADMIRALS WANT OUT

OTTAWA (CP) — A major crisis broke around Defence Minister Hellyer Thursday night with reports that four rear-admirals want out of the navy over the way armed forces integration is proceeding.

One, Rear-Admiral H. G. Burchell of Ottawa, deputy chief of technical services for logistics, said in an interview he has asked for early retirement and informed sources say three others are reported to be resigning or are under threat of being retired.

The others are:

● Rear-Admiral Robert P. Welland, of Ottawa, deputy chief of operations, at Canadian Forces Headquarters. He is reported to have resigned Wednesday or Thursday.

● Rear-Admiral William Landymore of Halifax, chief of Maritime Command and the Atlantic Fleet.

● Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling of Esquimalt, deputy commander of Maritime Command and commander of the Pacific Fleet, who said Thursday he may make a statement "at a more opportune time."

NOT HENNESSY

Sources said the dispute has nothing to do with the double promotion to vice-admiral of Commodore Ralph Hennessy, 47, announced last week.

They said it concerns alleged attitudes of Mr. Hellyer that if senior officers have any doubts whatsoever about service integration they should not hold command.

As rumors about the unrest spread around Parliament Hill, Conservative MPs tried to round up enough information to raise the issue on the floor of the Commons before Parliament started its summer recess.

NOTHING SAID

But the Commons closed with nothing said.

In London, Ont., Mr. Hellyer said that in the past few days at meetings in Ottawa it was indicated to him that "certain personnel" were willing to retire if given pension advantages.

He said "advantages" meant there should be no loss or reduction in pensions should anyone be fired or retire early.

But Mr. Hellyer said no resignations have been submitted to him since the meetings.

Snipers Pick Off Police From Chicago Rooftops

BULLETIN

CHICAGO (UPI) — A 14-year-old Negro girl was struck by a bullet and killed early today while police battled roving Negro gangs of rioters in Chicago's west side slums. A 13-year-old Negro boy was in critical condition in another shooting incident.

CHICAGO (AP) — Negro gangs and policemen exchanged shots in a series of gunfights as intense violence erupted along a four-mile stretch of Chicago's West Side Thursday night.

A police captain was shot and wounded. (See earlier story, Page 7.)

Armored vehicles and tear gas units were called to Lake and Wood streets, where police communications said a pitched battle was in progress.

Police Capt. Francis Nolan, watch commander of the Deering District, was reported in good condition in hospital with a rifle bullet in the back. He was shot with a rifle by a sniper from a rooftop.

Up to 5,000 Negroes jammed the streets as more than 900 policemen attempted to restore order in the predominantly Negro neighborhood.

Negroes fired at policemen from rooftops as officers hid behind squad cars and darted from doorway to doorway, firing as they went.

Windows of most businesses operated by white persons were smashed. Armed guards stood outside a neighborhood bank.

MOTORISTS PELTED

Motorists were pelted with rocks as they drove through the area. Many car windows were broken.

Residents threw shards of glass from upper windows onto the darting policemen.

A group of policemen firing pistols from each hand chased a marauding gang of Negroes down a street.

Other policemen aimed their shots at rooftops.

CAR OVERTURNED

One gang overturned a car as it ran down the street.

Police said looting of stores was widespread.

Reporters driving through the area were pelted with rocks and bricks, but none was injured.

Hundreds of persons hurled objects from windows and roofs.

Police communications aid officers in the area had called for more ammunition.

GLASS COVERED

The streets and sidewalks were strewn with glass.

"Get down, they just opened up on us," a policeman screamed at reporters as the shooting erupted.

The violence erupted for the third consecutive night on the city's West Side—near the area where several persons were injured in two nights of rioting last summer.

Disturbances had been kept

British Bank Crisis Aftermath of Strike

LONDON (UPI) — Britain Thursday raised its bank rate to a crisis level of 7 per cent, froze nearly $280,000,000 lending money and warned of even tougher measures to come to defend the pound and ward off devaluation. (See story page 9).

Government and the Bank of England acted urgently to rescue Britain's economy from the damaging effects of the seven-week maritime strike and to stop speculative attacks on the pound.

Resort Lift Spills Two to Deaths

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A ski lift collapsed at a ski resort and a young girl to her death. The highway patrol said a girl's convention of the LDS (Mormon) Church was underway in the area at the time. It was not immediately determined how many persons were on the lift.

Powder Plant Blows

CARTHAGE, Mo. (AP)—Explosions rocked a Hercules Powder Co. plant near here Thursday and shattered windows 20 miles away, but workmen had a 20-minute warning and officials believed all escaped death.

Sheriff George Hickam said at least 12 men were in hospital. Others were treated and released.

A truck caught fire while being loaded at a powder magazine, the sheriff said. A warning whistle was blown 20 minutes before the first blast occurred.

SAVED THEM

"That's what saved them," Hickam said. "They got out so fast one of the men on the powder line took off without even reporting to his supervisor and telephoned from home that he had made it."

All residents within a three-mile area around the plant were evacuated.

Many of those injured were residents in homes within a half a mile of the plant.

The plant produces gunpowder, other explosives, chemicals and fertilizer.

The Missouri Highway Patrol declared ordered troops from all over the state to the scene and Governor Warren E. Hearnes ordered out National Guard units, totalling 200 men, from Carthage and nearby Webb City.

The powder plant is located about three miles south of Carthage.

Nationalist Shocks Labor

CARMARTHEN, Wales (Reuters) — The Welsh nationalist party Thursday won its first House of Commons seat in a shock by-election victory here over the governing Labor party's candidate.

Market gardener Gwynfor Evans, 54, won the Welsh constituency of Carmarthen for Plaid Cymru (Welsh nationalists).

The result was a heavy defeat for Labor, which had a 9,333 majority here in the March general election.

Usage and eight miles northeast of Joplin, Mo.

The explosions shattered all windows in the courthouse in Carthage and as far as 20 miles away. Shock waves were felt in Tulsa, Okla., 125 miles to the southwest.

AT LUNCH

More than 200 employees were in the plant when the first blast came.

But most of them were at lunch in another section of the facility and got out safely.

There were three major explosions and a series of smaller ones.

Motorists reported their cars were blown from nearby highways.

No Prospects In Air Strike

Grits Will Raise Pensions to $105

Opposition Sniffs a Means Test

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — This government Thursday was slammed for sending people back to the bad old days of the means test in its new plan for raising pensions.

The plan guarantees a monthly income of $105 for Canada's 1,100,000 old-age pensioners, who now draw a fixed pension of $75.

Health Minister MacEachen denied that the new plan involves a means test or a needs test. It is tied solely to income.

But Conservative house leader Michael Starr called it "just more waffling to mislead the old age pensioner by sending them back to the days of the means test."

"By delaying even this action on pensions until the Commons resumes in the fall, the government is shirking its responsibilities. The pension should be raised $25 a month at once."

Tory whip Eric Winkler said "It has to be a means test or a needs test. And we have all kinds of reasons to be apprehensive because the health minister refused to spell it out."

In the Commons, New Democrat Stanley Knowles complained:

"The plan is a means test under another name."

"All the government is proposing is that old age pensioners who do not have $30 a month of other income can qualify for up to $30 a month under this supplementary provision."

But Mr. Knowles added, there are thousands of older people

Four Admirals Going

Rear Admiral Burchell, 53, said in an interview he is in full support of the government's integration policy but indicated he disagreed with some aspects of its implementation.

His normal retirement would come next March and under "normal circumstances" he would have wanted to remain until then.

WILL CONTINUE

He said he has not resigned, and if his request for early retirement is rejected his intention is to continue.

They said Rear-Admiral Stirling was offered another job, refused, and will be retired.

They also said Rear-Admiral Landmore has refused to resign voluntarily so that Mr. Hellyer will be forced to sack him.

TO OTTAWA

Rear-Admiral Landmore and Stirling came to Ottawa this week from their respective commands in Halifax and Esquimaut, B.C. Rear-Admiral Landmore was on leave at the time and has returned to Nova Scotia. Rear-Admiral Stirling has returned to the West Coast.

Rear-Admiral Landmore is reported to have seen Prime Minister Pearson as well as Mr. Hellyer and had been told to resign if he felt he could not continue to carry on.

He is said to have refused to resign and asked to be fired.

NO ADMIRALS

Rear-Admiral Welland was not available for comment here Thursday night. If the four admirals have in fact left the services, the navy will be without an admiral until Vice-Admiral Hennessy's promotion becomes effective in a few days.

Informants said the four admirals in question have in effect found themselves in the same position as that of three other senior officers whose retirements before normal retirement age were announced last week.

These three were Lt-Gen. Frank J. Fleury, 52, commander-in-chief of the armed forces, Lt-Gen. Robert W. Moncel, 49, vice-chief of the defence staff, and Vice-Admiral Kenneth L. Dyer, 50, chief of personnel.

WERE FIRED

Reliable sources said these three officers in effect were fired.

Mr. Hellyer said in the Commons they had retired "through mutual understanding," which was not defined.

Informants said things began to come to a head in the navy a few months ago when Mr. Hellyer lectured the officers at Esquimaut after hearing complaints from the men.

The burden of the lecture was that the 20th century had arrived and that they could not treat their men like Captain Bligh had.

Acid Condition Falsely Blamed For Changing Color of Hair

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes hair to turn grey? Mine was always very dark and I assumed that when it began to turn, it would be very white. Instead it has a yellowish tinge. Several beauticians tell me this is caused by an acid condition. How can it be remedied? MRS. M.

Except for treating severe malnutrition, thyroid deficiency and various skin diseases attacking the scalp, there isn't much we can do about controlling the amount, quality and natural color of the hair.

HAIR REGROWS

Diseases with high fever sometimes cause loss of hair, but all we can do is treat the disease and hope the hair will regrow, which it usually does. Likewise the light "pony-tail" hair-does cause some loss.

Other than that, heredity appears to be the most important governing factor. The original color is due to pigments. As a person grows older, the amount of pigments decline, principally because of diminished ished blood supply to the hair follicles, or to enzyme changes which govern the conversion of nutrients into pigments.

In general, there are natural processes. When a person becomes grey very early, it is more likely due to some hereditary defect in the chemistry of pigment formation. People in the best of health become prematurely grey because of this.

NOT ACID

It is not caused by "an acid condition," and beauticians would do their clients a favor by discarding that old wheeze. In fact, acid condition has been used as an explanation for everything from hiccups to hagsnags, and used so often that people take it for granted that it means something. Well, it doesn't.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there a chance of damaging the heart by hitting the steering wheel in a car accident? I had severe pains afterwards. A month later an EGG showed damage to the heart. — L.J.

Yes, the heart muscle can be bruised in such an accident, but in such cases as I have seen, it improved promptly and the EGG (electrocardiographic) readings returned to normal in a relatively short time.

A fracture of the sternum (breast bone) also can occur, and cause prolonged chest pain. One might question, therefore, whether after 30 days the damage shown in the EGG reading was the result of bumping of the steering wheel, or was present before the accident.

Note To G.A.S.: These special stockings which your doctor recommended for various veins are a brand fitted to your measurements. They give better support. They are rather widely used in such cases.

Mass Slayings Shock Chicago

The victims and Miss Amurao were in training at South Chicago Community Hospital seven blocks away.

They lived in a two-story three-bedroom contemporary townhouse, set aside for student nurses.

Police were not sure whether the killer came through a kitchen window at the rear of the building or forced his way in the front door.

KNOCK ON DOOR

Miss Amurao told police she and one of the other girls were aroused from sleep by a knock on their bedroom door. Opening it, she said, she saw a man with a knife and a pistol.

He motioned them to another bedroom and bound their hands. Three other girls were brought back and tied. The other victims were brought to the bedroom and pushed in as they arrived after night duty. One of the nine was a visitor, Mary Ann Jordan.

The killer then took the girls from the bedroom to other parts of the house, one by one, and killed.

O. W. Wilson, superintendent of Chicago police, said "it was the most serious crime since the Valentine's Day massacre in 1929." In that gang war event, seven were shot down with tommy-guns.

At a press conference, Wilson read a printed sheet prepared for reporters which said three of the nurse victims were strangled, two were stabbed, and one was shot. Wilson did not say which victim had been shot.

The victims were:

Melita Gargallo, 23, of the Philippines.
Valentina Pasion, 23, of the Philippines.
Pamela Wilkenburg, 22, of Lansing, Ill.

Gloria Davy, 23, Dyer, Ind.
Suzanne Harris, 22, Chicago.
Patricia Matusek, 21, Chicago.
Mary Ann Jordan, 20, Chicago.

Nina Schmale, 24, Wheat, Ill.
Miss Amurao hid under the bed until the last of her fellow captives was taken from the room. She said she heard no screams as the others were taken out. Not until daylight, after an alarm clock set for 5 o'clock had rung, did she stir.

In the upstairs hallway and in the other two bedrooms, she saw the bodies of seven. Downstairs on a living room sofa lay the eighth, Miss Davy, nude, with a torn strip of sheeting around her throat.

Miss Amurao told the investigators that the intruder said to the girls as he tied them up that he wanted only money.

Otto Kreuzer, the chief of detectives, said there was some difficulty getting a clear picture of events from Miss Amurao because of her hysterical condition.

THREE DETAINED

Within three hours, three persons were detained for questioning. Two hitchhikers were picked up in Indiana. In Chicago, a man who fled a downtown airline office after a clerk saw blood on his shirt was seized, but later released.

Police said the killer left excellent fingerprints.

Police found three bodies in each of the two front bedrooms upstairs and another in the hallway leading to a rear bedroom where they were forced to wait their turns to die. It was in the rear bedroom that Miss Amurao hid under a bunk bed during one of the killer's trips to the murder rooms.

The eighth body was downstairs on a frontroom sofa.

Coroner Andrew Toman called it "the crime of the century."

RAPE UNLIKELY

Toman said preliminary autopsies on four of the bodies failed to show any had been raped. He said biochemists would make further tests.

Police said Miss Amurao's confused story gave this sequence of events:

She was asleep in the front bedroom with her roommate, Miss Gargallo, and was awakened shortly before midnight by a knock on the door.

She opened the door and saw the man standing there holding a knife and pistol. He motioned the two girls to the rear bedroom and bound their hands behind their backs.

There were four other girls in the house. He herded them all into the back bedroom and bound them.

When the two remaining dormitory mates came home with their friend Mary Ann Jordan, they were similarly treated.

One by one, the killer took the girls out.

During one of the killer's trips, Miss Amurao rolled under a doublebunk bed in the bedroom, which Cmdr. Flanagan described as the killer's "base of operations."

She lay in utter terror until 5 a.m., when the deadly silence was split by the ringing of an alarm clock. Miss Amurao thought the noise might frighten the murderer away, waited another 20 minutes or so, then began to wriggle loose.

Free, she stumbled down the hallway past the body of Miss Harris, into the bedroom where Miss Matusek, Miss Jordan and Miss Wilkenburg lay in pools of blood. She probably also saw the bodies of the other girls.

She burst through the window, out onto the ledge and screamed.

Pensions to Rise

policy of the government and its action in depriving senior citizens of justice.

He argued his case on the basis of the critical rise in the cost of living.

The new plan will probably mean raises for more than half of the old age security pensioners and will cost $225,000,000 in the first year.

The total cost will slip as more and more older people qualify for pensions under the Canada Pension Plan, which will pay $75 a month after 10 years of contributions.

In the Commons, Health Minister MacEachen promised that the legislation to set up guaranteed incomes will be introduced in the fall.

The figure of $106 a month was recommended by Senator David Crombie's committee on aging.

Mr. MacEachen told the commons that the eligibility age for old age security pensioners now 65, is dropping a year each year. By 1970, the flat-rate pension will be available, as a matter of right, to 1,500,000 Canadians aged 65 and over.

In the same period, a steadily increasing level of retirement benefits will be payable under the Canada Pension Plan, starting in January.

The Canada Pension Plan, he predicted, would solve the problem of adequate retirement pensions.

However, there are many older people in Canada who cannot benefit fully, or at all, from the plan because they are past retirement age or near it.

The pension of this group had been of great concern to the government.

Mr. MacEachen did not say how the money would be raised to pay the higher pensions.

An official speculated that there may be enough surplus in the Old Age Security Fund to cover it.

to a minimum until mid-evening, when swarms of Negro gangs roamed along a strip on Roosevelt Road from Pulaski Road to California Avenue, about 15 blocks from the edge of downtown Chicago.

Police said 10 to 15 Negroes had been arrested.

Two squad cars blocked off each intersection along the predominantly Negro section.

The disturbances, which have resulted in scores of arrests and injuries, were touched off in hot, muggy weather Tuesday when police turned off a fire hydrant in the neighborhood.

Sewer Challenge

THE ENGINEERS have done their job, and the Victoria region has a plan for main sewage disposal facilities to satisfy the needs of a growing population for the next 50 years. Now it is up to the elected representatives of the seven municipalities and the unorganized territories of the region to determine how the plan may be turned into a reality. Their task is not apt to be simple.

The cost of providing the trunks and outfalls, estimated at $23,514,000 in 1966 values although it could and probably would go higher, is hardly an overwhelming burden for the district to carry over a protracted period with the population and the tax base climbing.

But the sharing of it is the problem. No part of their designated studies, it has been handed to the Regional District Board by the engineers in nonchalant words in their final suggestion: "Since some of these problem areas lie in unorganized territory and because all of the recommendations are based on regional rather than local planning, consideration should be given to setting up the administrative machinery necessary to carry out the recommendations of this report."

The machinery in its most uncomplicated form probably would be a tax levy at a uniform rate throughout the region, geared to a program based on priorities of need.

Already, though, we have heard declarations that Victoria city has a sewer system generally more adequate for its own needs and should not be expected to help build others to serve its neighbors.

Will this attitude, with its threat to the implementation of the whole plan, prevail? Should it?

Going back from the final recommendation to the preface of the report, there is a pertinent paragraph.

"In the general public interest there is a need to transcend constricting local boundaries and to plan certain functions on a regional basis. Although there are already in the area several cases of the joint use of sewerage facilities, there has been an increasing awareness that sewerage problems cannot always be solved within the purely administrative boundaries of individual municipalities. The search for more economical schemes for sewerage disposal has led to a realization that the provision of sewers is one of the functions which should be considered in a wider regional context."

It may be an unpleasant fact to the taxpayers of Victoria and Oak Bay and Esquimalt that their health is bound up and of a parcel with the health of the people of Saanich and Sidney and Colwood. It is a fact none the less. And, as they may be an arrangement that is equitable to the property owners and residents they represent, the municipal spokesmen will be irresponsible if they ignore it. All parties to the study of ways and means that must now ensue face a challenge at this point to act, not in the more derogatory sense of the word as politicians, but as local statesmen looking to the ultimate good of the community.

Tell Zambia

ONCE AGAIN the government of Zambia is doing its best to scuttle any chances there might be of some peaceful solution to the Rhodesian crisis being brought about through talks or negotiations.

From the very outset Zambia has expressed its displeasure of Britain entering into informal exploratory talks with the de facto Rhodesian government. President Kaunda and all his spokesmen have continually demanded that Britain launch a military invasion of Rhodesia. Blood-spilling, apparently, is all that will please these gentlemen.

Happily, the more moderate nations which have become embroiled one way or another in the matter have to date rejected Zambia's persistent call for war. However, some frightening evidence has been revealed in recent days that the Zambian message is finally getting through—even to some of Prime Minister Wilson's cabinet colleagues.

Certainly it can be considered most odd that a British junior minister of the Commonwealth office, Mrs. Judith Hart, should choose this time to call upon the Commonwealth Sanctions Committee to take immediate action to turn the economic screws tighter against Rhodesia.

It was odd for a number of reasons, not the least being that Prime Minister Wilson himself made a detailed statement in the House on the progress of the talks just the week before.

In announcing that a brief pause was now being taken by both governments for further consideration of their respective positions, he said: "The discussions have been useful in clarifying attitudes and intentions and in further identifying the problems which have to be met to achieve a solution acceptable to the people of Rhodesia as a whole, and acceptable to this House."

He took pains to add that during the recess sanctions would be fully maintained.

Though the British prime minister's statement was not too informative it could justifiably be interpreted as being reasonably optimistic.

Further to this, Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia saw fit to announce two days later that he thought the talks would succeed.

Nor can it be overlooked that within the same week Dr. Hastings Banda of Malawi, whose country is closely linked with both Britain and Rhodesia, warned his African neighbors to stay out of the affair.

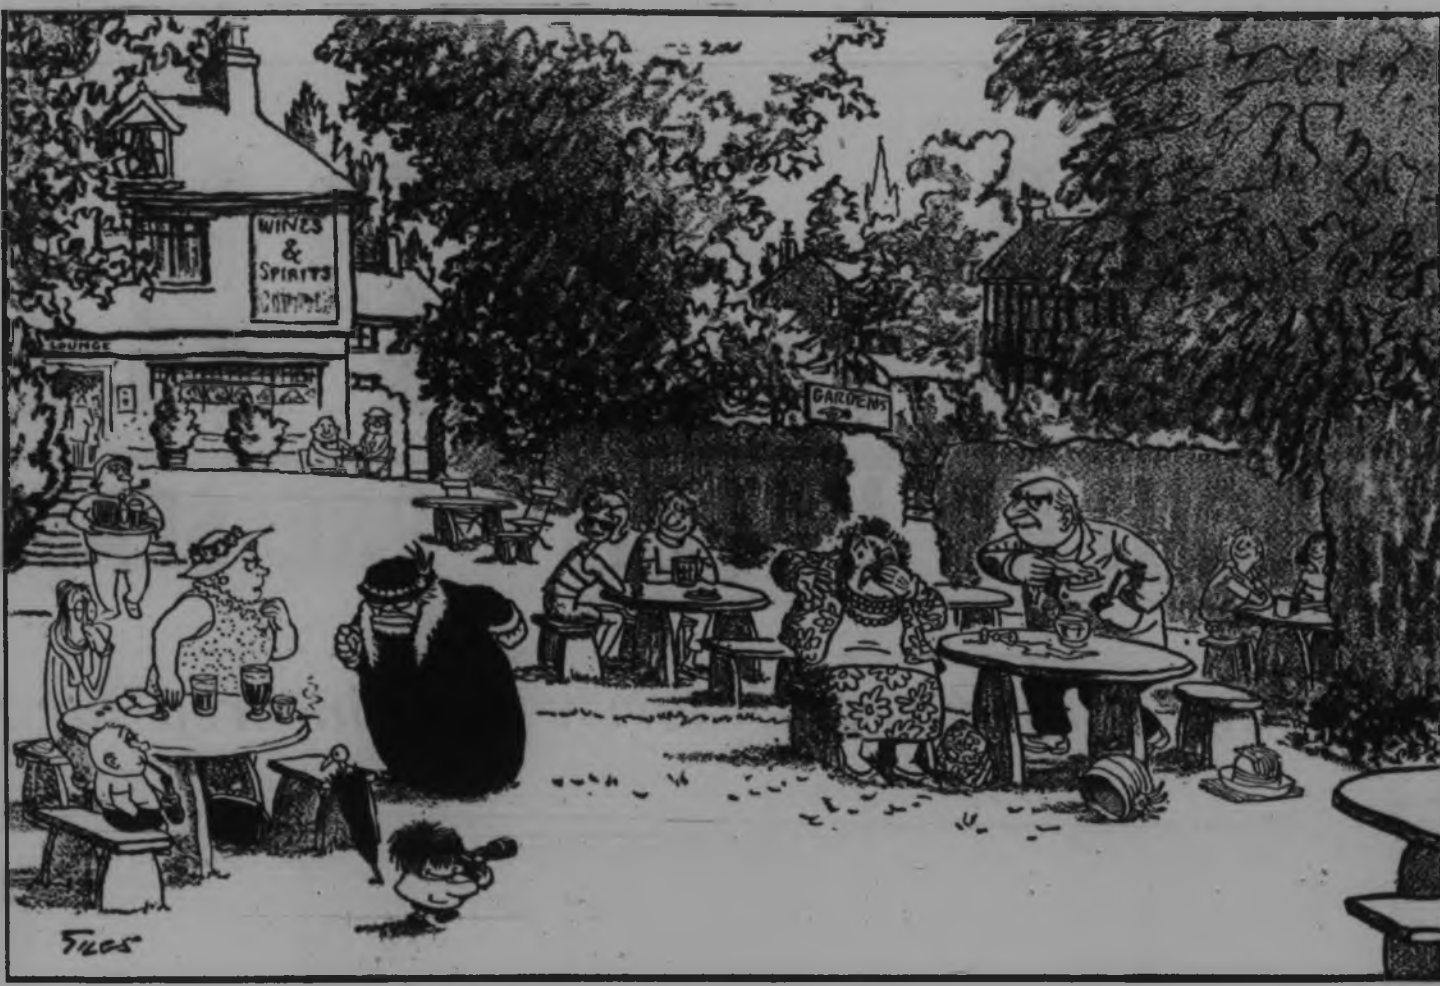

Rhodesia, he said, was a problem for Britain alone and she must be given a chance to resolve it herself.

There were countries, he added, who posed as the "great liberators" of Africa but they themselves "were heirs to the worst type of domination"—an obvious but thinly disguised reference to the Arabs, the Chinese and the Russians.

It is to be hoped that the Commonwealth Sanctions Committee—which is under the chairmanship of Canada's high commissioner to the United Kingdom, Mr. Lionel Chevrier—will not allow the intransigent demands of Zambia to unbalance its judgment at this time.

It is vitally important not only to Britain and the Commonwealth but the whole world that the exploratory talks continue and that nothing be done at this time to hinder them.

It would not be at all untoward if Mr. Chevrier so advised the Zambian government in as blunt terms as possible.

"Because you heard the lady say she supports President Johnson doesn't entitle you to go and hit her."

of shoes, and ships, and sealing wads . . .
By TOM TAYLOR

AMERICA is understandably alarmed because her western allies don't all back her without stint in the Viet Nam conflict.

From her point of view this doubtless is most annoying.

Robert Kennedy, for instance, while in Alberta last week and in reference to Canada, quoted Dante about hell being reserved for those who are neutral in time of crisis.

Not very diplomatic to his hosts, who could easily take this as a gratuitous insult.

The senator should have cast his mind back to 1939-41, and farther still to 1914-17.

But America should hardly expect her friends automatically to agree with every course of action she takes, and who might have other ideas of about how to contain Communism.

In private life one's friends don't endorse everything one does, and nations are no different.

Most of America's allies however sympathize with her predicament in Viet Nam and do not question the sincerity of her aims. They too would like to see a settlement that would bring success. It is only the pursuance of these aims that invite differing opinions.

The United States probably can bomb Hanoi into submission but this won't bring about enduring peace. It is the aftermath that tells the tale. Victory in the field does not solve all the conflicting problems.

If the western allies in the last war had liberated most of Central Europe, as they might have done, Soviet Russia wouldn't have dominated the postwar scene as it did. If the western troops had occupied Berlin first, as they easily could have done, that city wouldn't have been left as a troublesome island in a Soviet sea.

And history in Europe, embracing the U.S. as it has done, would be much different.

America's friends can be excused therefore for harboring doubts on Viet Nam.

How things are to be resolved there is anyone's guess, and perhaps neutral outsiders aren't qualified to offer advice. Reasonably enough perhaps the U.S. won't think they are.

But one wonders what would follow a grand gesture that America could make. And without loss of face.

Our neighbor across the line is the most powerful nation on earth militarily and economically. The whole world is aware of that. Her friends even though they may be neutral in action with Viet Nam admire her vast expenditures in foreign aid and for the many accomplishments that can be put to her name.

If the U.S. could bring herself to say to Hanoi, for instance: "We shall order a ceasefire for our troops, not to be broken unless your forces fire upon ours. Let us meet and negotiate and end this war."

If she could say to Peking: "Come into the United Nations and let us sit down together to discuss our differences. Let bygones be bygones. Let us get to know one another intimately. Let us work together so that peace may become a lasting thing."

America is a world leader. And one of immense and varied capacities. No one could regard this as an approach from weakness. Rather the reverse.

Even such a generous approach might not bring an end to the Viet Nam war. Even so gallant a gesture might be rebuffed by both Hanoi and Peking. But it would indicate America's genuine desire to arrive at a negotiated settlement and would redound nobly to her credit.

And it would serve to induce her friends to rally round her more strongly than pleases her at present.

Ottawa Offbeat

NEVER underestimate the power of a woman, counsel the advertising men.

They must have been peering at Parliament.

For there the Little Woman has more muscle even than the prime minister.

Any prime minister, that is, L. B. Pearson, John Diefenbaker, Louis St. Laurent, even, believe it or not—and many won't—Mackenzie King.

Weeks ago, Prime Minister Pearson extended the carrot of what he called a "reasonably early summer adjournment" to impatient parliamentarians slowly simmering in the humidity of the capital's own steam-bath style June.

All they had to do, he promised, was to get on with the public business and Parliament could recess in time for them to celebrate Dominion Day back home.

This was quite a switch from the tough technique former Prime Minister Diefenbaker used to employ.

He favored the stick instead of the carrot.

Rather than coax the House to do his work, he would order it done.

Dief's was the attitude that there was a certain set amount of work to be done and the House, like it or not, would have to say with it until it was all neatly wrapped up and delivered for Royal Assent.

There remains the suspicion that as the "Child of Parliament" he considers himself, the House to Dief was actually home.

And he didn't care if Parliament worked most of the summer—which it frequently did when he was ruling the Hill.

Deciding Factor Is at Home

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonial Ottawa Bureau

who has been around longer than any other MP, says so.

And on the basis of his 33 years of watching, listening and sizing up parliamentarians and their ways, "Oom Paul" ought to know.

Back in these long Diefenbaker sessions when the House sweated and swore its weary way deep into summer, it was the parliamentary wife and not the heat and humidity of the Hill in late July and August, nor all the threats and promises of prime ministers, nor the desperate pleas of House leaders who decided, finally, when enough was enough.

It got down, at last, to the crunch where, if Bill Bailey, MP, didn't come home—well, soon there might not be a home to come to.

If it was true then—and it was—it's even truer now.

For this is a young House, with more young fathers with more school-age kids than in any previous parliament.

And more wives fretting with impatience to get out to the cottage—or anywhere just so long as it's away.

For no PM, be he a tough and demanding Dief, or a more relaxed and easier-going Pearson, wields power over an MP as does an irritated and impatient wife and a household of restless kids pining to go on holidays.

Who says so?

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, veteran of the Commons.

So Parliament recesses for the summer, not when it suits the prime minister, even the leaders of the Opposition parties, nor yet the party floor bosses in the Commons.

It recesses, as it always has, when MP husbands can't stand the nagging from home any longer, can't face the begging kids—and can't take another dreary day of dull debate.

Even tough old Mackenzie King knew that, says Paul Martin, and Mackenzie was a hard-nosed bachelor.

The couple were immaculately turned out, but were informed that they would be permitted to enter the beer parlor in the basement. This was very magnanimous, but the offer was declined. They had received treatment normally meted out to social lepers.

This was in Victoria, not Jackson, Missouri, and I felt ashamed to have witnessed the discomfort thrust upon them. If this is not the essence of snobbery in this enlightened day and age, I should be glad to be corrected. I wonder if they have a sort of outhouse which caters to anyone who cares to enter in a loin cloth and army boots.

Whilst I concede that owners are entitled to impose certain conditions, they also have an obligation to the public who patronise them. It is this kind of snobbery which gives Victoria a bad impression to our tourists, and I hope they will remember the place where they were relegated to the basement.

Opium Export

The statement in the July 6 Colonial by B.C. Nag from Calcutta, that the Chinese are exporting 35,000 tons of opium a year is to put it mildly, ludicrous. One acre of land will produce approximately two pounds of opium. Working on that premise the Chinese would have 35,000,000 acres producing poppies. One can only hope such an exaggerated statement is a misprint.

Political Dilemma

By MARQUIS CHILDS
from Los Angeles

PUT in crudel terms, the Johnson administration will make the congressional campaign in the fall a choice between patriotism and communism.

Are you for the boys fighting in Viet Nam or are you helping the Communists who are killing them?

This has been foreshadowed by President Johnson's more emotional utterances in recent weeks. And what has been heard so far is merely a prelude to the drumfire that promises to grow in volume as election day draws near. It was the underlying theme of Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey's speech to the Governors' Conference here and it helped to explain the pressure for a resolution specifically supporting the military commitment in Viet Nam.

Certain polls show an increasing disquiet over the widening war and a drop in President Johnson's popularity. Given his intense will to win the re-election of any criticism from whatever source, the Johnson reaction was predictable. But, temperament to one side, the reasoning within the administration is that only evidence of dissonance within the United States sustains the hopes of the Communists in North Viet Nam.

If Walter Lippman and Senators J. William Fulbright and Wayne Morse would be quiet, all would be well. As for the election in November, if it should go against the administration, Hanoi and Peking will interpret this as repudiation of the war and the Communists will attack it out, with resulting American casualties through continuing months of war.

For one man here in California this simple black-and-white approach means a painful dilemma. That man is Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, running for re-election to a third term. The evidence indicates that the war is more unpopular in this state than perhaps anywhere else in the country, and that is true particularly among the party faithful, the fund raisers, the doorbell ringers, those who take issues seriously on the left of centre. What is more, they relate the spreading conflict to the Johnson temperament, and they don't like either one.

It is hardly surprising, therefore, that something like panic can be detected among Brown's lieutenants. Having initiated extraordinary achievements in the transfer of water from the north to the south, in education, highway construction and other fields, Brown has also in his eight years in the governorship accumulated an infinitude of grievances and resentments. He faces in Ronald Reagan an opponent who, with his skilled handlers, is testing the capacity of television to fashion out of the simplest elements the image of a leader. Having whipped his moderate Republican opponent, former Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco, by a two-to-one margin, while in the Democratic primary Brown was pushed uncomfortably close by Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, today Reagan is a formidable candidate.

The diarchy in the ranks of the Democrats stems partly from the free-swinging intrigues that have fragmented the party. Intriguer No. 1 is Jesse Unruh, Speaker of the Assembly, who built a power base in money and votes in Southern California. Exploiting California's star system, Unruh was chiefly responsible for getting Pierre Salinger, the late President Kennedy's press secretary, to run for the Senate in 1964.

Salinger's candidacy was a disaster and he was defeated by 200,000 votes while Lyndon Johnson was carrying the state by nearly 1,300,000. The successful Republican was George Murphy, the actor, the good guy. Murphy's success opened the way for Reagan, an actor on both screen and television now proving himself a quick study in politics. This is the star system with a vengeance.

As for the Viet Nam issue, Reagan says emphatically that it will not be part of his campaign. He does not have to exploit it, since the division in the ranks of the Democrats guarantees that it will be aired. Four peace candidates in Northern California who got between 40 and 45 per cent of the vote against incumbent congressmen in the Democratic primary are calling on Brown to repudiate the Johnson policy on Viet Nam.

Needless to say, Brown will spurn these demands. He will do his best to concentrate on state issues and his achievements as governor while painting a picture of the destructive effective he claims Reagan will have on these achievements if he is elected governor.

In despondent moments Democrats talk about a Reagan win by a majority of a million votes. This would sweep in a Republican legislature. Unruh would lose his power base and be merely leader of the minority.

Such grimly specious are working. It is said, to unite the warring tribes within the Democratic party. They will all pull together in what is obviously a major crisis threatening to break a long string of successes. In the more optimistic view it is still a horse race. And the men around the governor console themselves with the thought that good, old Pat always comes through in the end.

Government Aids Dredging

West Bay Will Boom

By ALEC MERRIMAN
Outdoors Editor

A $15,000 harbor dredging project for pleasure boats will begin in West Bay early in the fall as a joint project between the federal government, West Bay Marina and Hilmarine Boat Works.

The project in Victoria harbor will be one of the first under the federal government's recently announced small-harbor development aid project designed to help pleasure boating in Canada.

Tenders for the West Bay dredging have been called and are returnable Aug. 30, with dredging expected to start in September.

ENTRANCE CHANNEL

The federal government will dredge a 1,600-foot-long and 60-foot-wide entrance channel from deep water on the north side of

The federal government will share on a 50-50 basis an estimated $24,000 worth of dredging comprising a 300-foot approach channel, 60 feet wide, to West Bay Marina and a 400-foot approach channel of the same width to Hilmarine Boat Works.

BOAT BASIN

In addition Jimmy Worswick, proprietor of West Bay Marina at the foot of Head Street, just outside the gates of Work Point Barracks, plans to dredge on his own a one-acre boat basin to a depth of six feet below zero tide.

The basin will have 275 feet of frontage on his marina complex and extend 240 feet out on one side and 70 feet out on the other.

It will provide all-tide wharfage for about 250 boats. Mr. Worswick can now provide wharfage for about 100 boats. Victoria harbor at the entrance to the bay has problems at extreme low tides.

The new basin will also provide dockage for float-equipped aircraft.

The existing boat ramp will become an all-tide ramp and will be widened and improved.

The dredging will be realization of a dream Mr. Worswick has nurtured since 1958 when he retired from the Canadian army and started up the marina on his old family homestead.

RESTAURANT TOO

Eventual plans call for a seafood restaurant, marine supply store, expansion of his boat rental service, and a boat brokerage.

Hilmarine Boat Works is operated by Thomas Hilmar Wingen and provides boat repair and boat building services, and marine boat lift for boats up to 50 tons.

Esquimalt municipality owns 125 feet of water frontage between West Bay Marina and Hilmarine Boat Works. West Bay provides a safe wind-free mooring spot.

Work has already started on relocating the private dolphins for the Greater Victoria Mill Operators' Association boating ground.

Speediest Jets In Dogfight Over Red River

From REUTERS-AP

SAIGON (CP) — American and North Vietnamese jets tangled in dogfights above North Viet Nam Thursday. The Americans claimed to have downed two Soviet-built MIG fighters with missiles.

The fights matched two of the fastest-flying combat jets — American F-4 Phantoms and North Vietnamese MiG-21s. Both can top 1,500 miles an hour.

One MIG-21 went down in a dogfight over the Red River Valley, about 20 miles northwest of Hanoi, the second went the same way.

ONCE BEFORE

Once before American raiders downed one of the Soviet-built planes. Both MIGs were destroyed by Sidewinder missiles guided to the target by the heat from the fugitive planes' engines.

In other action: U.S. B-52 bombers hit for the second day in a row at suspected enemy troop concentrations bordering North and South Viet Nam.

Military briefing officers reported 287 troops and 1,349 enemy troops were killed in action in South Viet Nam last week. One hundred and ten were Americans. In addition, 686 U.S. troops were wounded. By unofficial calculation, American dead in the war now totals 4,239.

On the political front, Buddhist sources said Thich Tri Quang has agreed in principle to end the hunger strike that he launched June 8 in an effort to force South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's government to resign.

Peace Talk Ruled Out By Russia

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Thursday charged President Johnson is motivated by "selfish domestic" politics in his conduct of the Viet Nam war and ruled out a Geneva peace conference at this time.

Soviet Premier Kosygin said the U.S. bombing near Hanoi and Haiphong in North Viet Nam brought the United States far beyond the "brinkmanship" policy of the late secretary of state John Foster Dulles.

Negro Rioting Continues

Police Fight Through Mobs

CHICAGO (UPI)—West side Negroes rioted into Thursday morning, continuing for a third day the racial violence that gushed up from a dispute over a fire hydrant.

Riot police fired over the heads of young looters, formed flying wedges to clear streets in three west side neighborhoods—and dodged Molotov cocktails, bottles, bricks and curses from apartment windows high above them.

NEGROES SHOT

Three Negroes—one a 10-year-old girl and another a 14-year-old boy—were shot. Five policemen were injured and seven other persons were hurt. Police reported 39 persons were arrested Wednesday night and early Thursday, bringing to 60 the total arrested since Tuesday night.

The shifts of all Chicago policemen were extended to 12 hours.

The only way to suppress the violence recently experienced is to put adequate manpower in to deal with criminal activity," police Supt. P. W. Wilson told newsmen.

About 350 policemen converged on the west side Wednesday night as reports of fires and looting came in. Some fired over the heads of about 200 youths who had broken into and set fire to a drugstore along Roosevelt Road, where Tuesday night's violence boiled.

Hospital Strike Could Start This Morning

MONTREAL (CP)—The executive committee of the National Federation of Services (CNTU) said in a statement Thursday a strike of hospital workers in Quebec will start at 7 a.m. EDT today in 21 hospitals.

The statement did not say how many of the federation's 2,000 members would be affected by this partial strike against the 139 hospitals in which they are employed.

Meanwhile, in Quebec City, Premier Daniel Johnson Thursday appealed to hospital employees "not to plunge the population into a disastrous situation" by declaring a strike.

Talks continued Thursday in a Montreal hotel aimed at settling the dispute between the federation and the Quebec Hospitals Association.

There was no immediate indication whether the provincial government would apply for an injunction to delay the strike for

In another area, firemen battling a blaze started by another mob were showered with bricks and had to call police.

As the situation quieted somewhat, word came that the arrest of a robbery suspect had touched off car-stoning, windowsmashing and fire-bombing in the Fillmore Street district three miles away where Chicago's worst riots of last summer occurred.

FLYING WEDGES

Police quieted that trouble. Riot police then tried to clear a seven-block area of West Madison Street by forming flying wedges. From the darkened tenements came rocks and Molotov cocktails. Women and girls leaned from windows and screamed at the policemen below them as lightning flashed. "Go home or go to jail," policemen told anybody on the street.

Legion Joins Parade

PARIS (AP)—France Thursday celebrated the 17th anniversary of the storming of the Bastille with military pomp and the high spirits of carnival.

A military parade along the Champs Elysees here watched by President de Gaulle touched off ceremonies and celebrations scheduled throughout the country.

The military review was one of the largest and most colorful in recent years, and it went past massed thousands who turned out in cool, sunny weather.

FLY PAST

France's supersonic Mirage-IV nuclear bombers and lesser elements of the air force flew over the parade.

Then tanks, armored cars, weapons carriers, field guns and all manner of rolling equipment clattered and roared down the broad, tree-lined avenue.

The Foreign Legion was back in the parade ranks, apparently in good graces again after having been snubbed in recent years because of its support of opponents of Algeria's independence.

New Squad For Youth Cuts Crime

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police Chief Ralph Booth said Thursday a special youth squad was largely responsible for a 23-per-cent decrease in juvenile arrests here.

Chief Booth told a police commission meeting 189 juveniles were arrested in June and more than 230 in May.

He said the squad, headed by Sgt. D. H. A. Bellamy, was created two years ago to work closely with youth organizations, schools and parents to keep juveniles busy and out of bad company.

Bank Rate Increased To Save Sterling

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The British Bank rate was increased to the crisis level of seven per cent and the London commercial banks have had their lending capacity squeezed by an increase from one to two per cent of their deposits which they must maintain in cash with the Bank of England.

These moves taken Thursday are the government's latest method of fighting weakness of sterling and the growing imbalance of the country's trading deficit.

The bank rate has been six per cent since last June when it was seven per cent during an earlier sterling crisis.

U.S. PATTERN

In creating higher money rates Britain is following the pattern in the U.S. where government bonds are giving their highest yield in over 40 years.

By making it more costly to borrow money, and by restricting the amount the banks will have to lend, the U.K. government hopes that domestic spending, particularly on credit, will be curtailed, and that British manufacturers will be forced to make greater efforts to sell abroad.

TRADITIONAL MEASURES

So far Prime Minister Wilson and his labor government have taken the traditional financial measures in dealing with recurring sterling problems, even if they have stated they oppose such steps in principle.

Mr. Wilson told Parliament further austerity measures were being planned to restrain overseas spending at home.

The increase in the bank rate was criticized in European money markets as being not drastic enough to save sterling. If this does not work the next step could be devaluation.

One West German bank spokesman said that unless the British learned to live within their means mere changes in the bank rate would not solve the problem.

FIRM BOUGHT

Allan Jarvis has resigned his position as vice-president of Yorkshire Securities and has bought the old established Toronto investment firm of Playfair and Company.

Mr. Jarvis has been Toronto representative of the Victoria-Vancouver based Yorkshire Securities for some months and was to have been that company's representative on the floor of the Toronto Stock Exchange. Plans however were changed when the members of the Toronto Stock Exchange declined to give trading rights to the seat purchased by Yorkshire Securities earlier this year.

Playfair and Company operates a seat on the Toronto exchange.

FAST EXPANDING ANTHERS

Record earnings and sales for the first half of 1966 are reported by Anthes Imperial Ltd., a fast expanding manufacturing firm from St. Catharines, Ont.

Net income for the period was $1,825,000 (84 cents) up 35 per cent from $1,355,000 (60 cents) from the corresponding period of 1965.

Sales rose 17 per cent to $41,900,000 from $35,800,000 last year.

D. G. Willmot, president, expects the second half results to be moderately higher than the $1.17 a share earned in the last six months of 1965.

WHITEHALL MERGER

The Vancouver investment and brokerage firm of Norman R. Whittall Ltd., has been acquired by James Richardson and Sons, one of Canada's largest investment houses.

H. Richard Whittall, son of the founder of the firm, will become senior executive officer of James Richardson and Sons in B.C.

The amalgamation will make Richardson the first firm to hold three seats on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. It has two in its own name and has acquired a third by the new acquisition.

COMINCO COSTS UP

Reduced prices for metals and increased costs offset higher sales and helped reduce net income of Cominco Ltd. in the first half of 1966.

In a preliminary half-yearly report Cominco said its net earnings were estimated at $28,100,000 ($1.56) against $28,300,000 ($1.70) in the first half of 1965.

The accounts include the results of Cominco's wholly-owned subsidiaries and Pine Point in which it owns about 80 per cent.

U.S. PRESSURE TELLS

Under pressure from the U.S. administration two leading molybdenum producers in that country—American Metals Climax and Molybdenum Corporation of America—have rescinded their price increase of 10 cents a pound.

Endako Mines, whose mine west of Prince George produces 12 per cent of the world's supply of molybdenum, which had followed the lead of the U.S. producers, has also restored its price to the former level.

Cadet Banfield is taking University Naval Training Division training with other cadets from across Canada. He is son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Rutherford.

Carter Report Almost Ready

OTTAWA (CP) — The government expects to have the report of the Carter royal commission on taxation before Parliament reconvenes Oct. 3 after its summer recess, Finance Minister Sharp said Thursday. He said in the Commons that special measures are being taken so preparation of the French-language version of the report will not delay its delivery to the government.

Lady Driver In Hospital

CHEMANUS — Joan Kempthorne, 22, of Westholme is in good condition at the Chemainus General Hospital after the small car she was driving ran off Mount Sicker Road and crashed into a telephone pole Wednesday. Police said she suffered minor lacerations.

In Simplest Terms

Law and the Driver

Many motorists are not aware of the changes of the B.C. Motor Vehicle Act. For their benefit, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce traffic safety committee has prepared a list of traffic regulations with explanations where needed.

Not included are changes which refer specifically to professional drivers.

Section 152 Obedience to Traffic Signals

Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act,

(a) if upon or over a highway there is one or more than one traffic-control device indicating the direction in which vehicles shall proceed, no person shall drive a vehicle other than in the direction so indicated.

(b) if upon or over a highway there is a traffic-control device indicating that a certain vehicle movement is prohibited, no person shall drive a vehicle in a movement prohibited by the sign.

Comment

This section applies to traffic control devices erected for the direction of traffic movement.

Subsection (a) pertains to directional signs, such as the type with the black arrow in a green circle, such as you see at intersections in the main business area, which indicate the direction traffic is to move.

Subsection (b) refers to a sign such as "No Entry" or "One Way Traffic." Where these signs are erected then movement of traffic contrary to what the sign indicates is prohibited.

Five Sailors Accused Of Piracy

GRIMSBY, England (AP)—Five seamen have been charged with piracy in an attempt to take over a British trawler on the high seas. The plot unfolded, a court was told, when the captain who had been bound hand and foot and locked in his cabin broke free to send an S.O.S.

IN CUSTODY The accused seamen—handcuffed together—were arraigned in court and ordered held in custody for a further hearing Monday.

Prosecutor James Angus said the five fishermen had plotted taking over the ship before the trawler Lovenden sailed out of Grimsby last Saturday for Norwegian waters.

ATTACKED "A few hours out the skipper and four other members of the crew were attacked by the five accused," the prosecutor said.

When the skipper broke free to send an S.O.S. the five attackers set out in a lifeboat with provision and started to row to West Germany, the prosecutor said. They were picked up by a West German ship, taken to Emden and handed over to British authorities.

Richmond Fatality

RICHMOND (CP)—Daisy Irene Parsons, 48, of Richmond was killed Thursday when her car was involved in a collision with another one.

Jury's Suggestion

Older Drivers Need Tougher Tests

Stricter examinations for aged drivers was recommended Wednesday by a coroner's jury inquiring into a fatal crash Saturday.

A head-on collision on the Patricia Bay Highway claimed Mrs. Sarah Forryan, 83, of 2110 Windsor.

The jury asked closer examinations into medical disabilities and for driving knowledge by elderly drivers.

The car in which Mrs. Forryan died was being driven by her husband, Cyril, 77. Driver of the second car was Clifford Allan, 23, of 6858 Veyness.

Evidence showed Mr. Forryan misjudged traffic and cut in front of Mr. Allen's southbound car as his own northbound car tried to turn left.

'Walk Dog Without Fear After Midnight'

By ED DE MOCH

CHICAGO (AP) — "It's the kind of neighborhood where you can walk your dog without fear after midnight."

That was the typical description given by residents Thursday for the district in which eight young nurses were slain. It is on Chicago's far south side.

As far as the residents are concerned, it has not been a changing neighborhood. Many have lived in the same homes for 15 to 30 years and longer.

Directly behind the complex of townhouses is a children's park and playground. There are slides, teeter-totters, swings, benches and walks. Across the street from the townhouses is a community center. The National Maritime Union hiring hall is on another corner across the street. A block away there is a Roman Catholic church.

Residents of the townhouses pay $185 a month, plus charges for utilities. All the homes are neatly kept. Many townhouse tenants have planted flowers.

In the words of many residents, it is a neighborhood for "decent middle-income Chicagoans."

Robert Hall, 52, a foreman at a steel plant, who lives in a townhouse near the one occupied by the slain nurses, said he heard the screams of the night with Laura Bazoni, who was the housemother for the slain nurses and for 16 other nurses who live in adjoining townhouses.

"The game broke up at about 9:30 p.m. and my wife and I sat around until about 10 and then went to bed," Hall said. "I heard nothing more the rest of the night until I heard the nurse screaming this (Thursday) morning."

WALKED DOG

Herb Brett, a salesman residing a half block from the townhouse complex, said he and his wife returned home about midnight Wednesday night.

"About an hour later, I took my dog out for a walk and brought him to the park right behind the apartment," Brett said. "I never saw or heard a thing. You can walk your dog after midnight in this neighborhood and never worry about a thing."

NURSES QUIET

Ben Burnstein, an insurance salesman who has lived a block away from the townhouse for 14 years, said the nurses were so quiet and well behaved "you'd never know they were living there."

The hospital ran a bus service between the townhouses and the hospital, about a mile apart. The student senior nurses live in the townhouses and the regular staff nurses reside in the nursing home adjoining the hospital.

'Never Liked Suffering'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Pamela Lee Wilkening, 20, one of the eight student nurses slain Thursday, wrote three years in her application for nurses' training:

"I have always wanted to be a nurse because I never liked to see people suffer."

Another victim, Patricia Ann Matusik, 20, Chicago, wrote that she had wanted to be a nurse ever since she could remember because "the joy one gets from helping others cannot be taken away."

DIFFICULTIES

The girls, who were only a few weeks short of their goals, were found slain in their two-story townhouse apartment. They had been stabbed, strangled and shot.

They were part of a class of 111 student nurses at South Chicago Community Hospital, and representative of the thousands of young women who stream to Chicago's medical centers each year for training in a profession in which difficult hours and dangerous travel go hand in hand.

"We don't want to exaggerate the dangers but we are very conscious of the need to be alert," said Mrs. Anne Zimmerman, executive administrator of the Illinois Nurses Association. "The white uniform, white stockings and shoes point nurses out as targets," she said.

"We tell our members not to wear their uniforms to and from hospitals," Mrs. Zimmerman said.

She said the mass murder focussed attention on the need for security around hospitals, "but how did these girls know what was upstairs? This is a case of inside surveillance as well."

ENGAGED

The killings were a double tragedy for the family of Mary Ann Jordan, 21, Chicago. Her brother, Philip, was engaged to Susan Harris, 21, another victim whose body was found, stabbed repeatedly, in a hallway between the second floor bedrooms.

Two of the other victims also were engaged.

Nine Schmale, 21, Wheaton, Ill., was the daughter of Dr. John Schmale, Jr., resident physician on the staff of the West Side Veterans Administration Hospital.

Her fiancé, Peter McNamee, 22, Wheaton, heard of the mass slaying on the car radio.

"Just two weeks ago, I gave Nina Jo an engagement ring. Last Monday we spent boating on the Fox River. I last saw her at 10:30 p.m. Monday. She was all excited about her approaching graduation," McNamee said.

Bizarre Crimes Recalled

NEW YORK (AP) — Few mass murders of recent times have equalled in horror the killing of eight nurses in a Chicago residence.

MASSACRE

For sheer cold-bloodedness, few mass murders rival the 1933 Chicago gangster slayings known as the St. Valentine's Day massacre.

Seven members of the gang ruled by George (Bugs) Moran were waiting for Moran in their headquarters when four or five men, two of them in police uniforms, came in and ordered the seven Moran mobsters to line up against a wall. The victims meekly complied, thinking it a routine police raid.

SEVEN LAY DEAD

A few moments later the seven lay dead, riddled by machine-gun bullets.

The Al Capone gang, fighting Moran for control of bootlegging, was blamed for the slaughter, but the killers were never caught.

One of the most terrifying stories of mass murder was told in November, 1961, by a little girl rescued after 3½ days at sea on a cork raft.

Eleven-year-old Terry Jo Duperrault told Miami investigators her parents, Arthur and Jean Duperrault of Green Bay, Wis., and her brother were slaughtered aboard the ketch Bluebellie by Capt. Julian Harvey, who also killed his wife, Mary.

Harvey had been rescued earlier in a dinghy with the dead body of Terry Jo's sister, Renee, 7. After he learned that Terry Jo had been rescued, he committed suicide.

Thursday's tragedy is added to a list of bizarre crimes in Chicago that includes the "lipstick murder," one of a series of killings by William Heirens in the mid-1940s.

Second World War veteran, took a souvenir German pistol and went on a rampage in the street, gunning down 13 strangers. Urbah is still confined in the state hospital in Trenton, N.J.

Knife Menaced Murder Victim

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police said Thursday Mrs. Anna Whitby was threatened by a man with a knife before she was slain a week ago in a secluded "lovers lane" in Coquitlam.

"They said the knife—a common kitchen paring knife with a 3½-inch blade—was found on the ground near the scene of the murder."

The nude body of Mrs. Whitby was found Friday after the victim's six-year-old son, Murray, was discovered wandering in the dead-end lane.

OWN SLACKS Mrs. Whitby, 28, from nearby Port Moody, had gone to the lane to picnic and polish her car. She was strangled with her own slacks.

RCMP investigators said Thursday they were told by Murray that a man came out of the bush with a knife and threatened his mother.

Beaten Stewardess Tells Of Apartment Murder

SEATTLE (UPI) — Airline stewardess Lisa Wick, 20, Thursday gave police a description of the assailant who bludgeoned her roommate, Lonnie Trumbull, 20, to death and left Miss Wick brutally beaten.

Miss Trumbull was found dead and Miss Wick near death in their apartment June 23 by a third stewardess roommate, Joyce Bowe, 20.

Miss Wick, who has gradually recovered after undergoing brain surgery for her injuries, told police detectives that the assailant was a white man, about 30 years old, about five-foot-10 and about 165 pounds. She said he had thinning blonde hair.

LONG TALK

It was the first time since the attack that Miss Wick had been able to talk extensively to officers.

Miss Wick was able to help officers compile a composite picture of the attacker and the picture was being circulated through law enforcement transmission facilities and through wire services, newspapers and television stations.

Miss Wick's description of the assailant was the first big break in the case on which law enforcement officers have been working around the clock.

REWARD

Miss Trumbull and Miss Wick, both of Portland, recently began working as stewardesses for United Air Lines.

The air line has offered a $10,000 reward for information leading to the capture and conviction of the attacker.

Detective Sgt. Herb Arnold was asked if he thought there was any connection between Miss Trumbull's slaying and the mass killing of eight student nurses in Chicago Thursday.

NO SEX "We do not believe there is any connection between the Chicago homicides and the homicide here of Lonnie Trumbull," Arnold replied.

Neither Miss Trumbull nor Miss Wick was attacked sexually.

Miss Wick said the lights were out when the assault took place and it was not immediately explained how she was able to give such a detailed description. But talking about and they did not police said they were satisfied want to press her at this time that she knew what she was for further details.

Psychiatrist Hits 'Complacency'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Frederick Wertham, regarded by American psychiatry as one of its foremost authorities on criminal violence, a key aspect of the slaughter of eight nurses in Chicago is "the very complacent attitude of our society in 1966 toward violence of all kinds."

"We're not really appalled by it. Our sympathy for the victims is short-lived and for these unfortunate girls it may last for a week or 10 days," he said.

"In the end, we usually wind up sympathizing with the perpetrators of violence and the victims are forgotten. Our children learn to date on violence in comic books and on television. We're brought up on violence and violence is nothing."

ATTITUDE

There are two aspects to any deed—what is happening inside the door of the deed, whatever it is, and what comes to the door from the outside, which is the general attitude of his society toward what he is doing. Both count, said Wertham, and he hastened to add he was in no way flinging excuses for the killer of eight women.

Not having examined the killer, Wertham declined to "speculate" on either his mental status or his motives. But "the chances are he is sane in the legal meaning—an overwhelming number of the perpetrators of crimes of violence are."

Argos Stun Ti-Cats, 41-27 Ottawa Has Better Riders

(From CP reports)

Toronto's rebuilding Argonauts, rambling with rookies and cast-offs, stunned Hamilton Tiger-Cats and 30,617 mosquito-bitten Toronto fans last night by trouncing the Canadian football champions, 41-27.

In another pre-season game, played in Ottawa, the home-town Rough Riders found a spotty pass attack enough to whip Saskatchewan's Roughriders, 19-10.

Argos, scoring one touchdown in the first quarter and four in the second, grabbed a 34-0 half-time lead and was never seriously threatened. Tiger-Cats scored the two third-quarter touchdowns but Argos got their sixth major score before Mel Anthony got two fourth-quarter touchdowns for the losers.

SCORING SUMMARY

Nelson Aderley, Bob Swift, Wally Gable, the rookie quarterback, Dave Thelen, Al Irwin and Loomis Warren scored the Toronto touchdowns with make Ken Irwin making good on five convert chances.

Dick Cohee and Art Baker got the other two Hamilton touchdowns and Don Sulterin was three-for-four as a converter. Ottawa took a 7-0 lead in the first half on a touchdown by Russ Jackson and a single point.

KICKING SUMMARY

Saskatchewan got on the scoreboard in the third quarter on a field goal by Jack Abendschan but more Riggins, who missed both his convert attempts, hit for three-pointers late in the third-quarter and midway through the fourth to build the Ottawa lead to 12-3.

With both clubs going mainly with regulars, the Western club got close with a late one-yard

Blocking Rules Bring Changes Like New 5-2-5 Lion Defence

By JIM TANG

COURTENAY — They will still be using 12 players aside on the larger field, the punt return man will still be on his own after touching the ball and there still will be the rouge, but the football played this year by Canadian clubs has moved a considerable step nearer the type of football played in the United States.

SHOULD OPEN IT UP

New rules as regards blocking figure to produce 57 rather than 47 yards in the Canadian Football League. There will be new offensive formations to take advantage of them and new defensive alignments to try and counter — act them.

The change is that, for the first year, at least, defenses will be hard put to hold their own and it is likely that 1966 will produce a lot of high-scoring games.

Under the new rules, backs can now block anywhere on the field and anyone wearing an eligible receiver's number — the five backs and the two ends, can block freely on forward passes completed over the line of scrimmage.

Previously, only the backs lined up inside the ends could block past the line of scrimmage and there was no blocking at all for receivers who accepted the ball past the scrimmage line.

Defence invariably catches up with offense but for the first year the change in blocking rules could be devastating for CFL defenses.

Coaches are busy working in new plays and, wherever possible, new personnel to take full advantage on offense but their main worry is how their defence will react to a new challenge.

And so it is here in the camp of the B.C. Lions. They will have big, fast men at fullback, one halfback spot and at tight end to block for each other and perhaps primarily, to spring Willie Fleming, who could have a spectacular season if it all works out.

CORNERMEN GONE

But the big change here is on defence. The Lions will have a 5-2-5 defensive alignment. It will be as variable as any defence is but it is designed to try and minimize the effect of the new rules.

Gone are the corner-linebackers who operated in what was roughly a 4-4 defence. Instead, the Lions' front will have two ends, two tackles and a middle guard, who will, when circumstances dictate, drop back to act as a third linebacker, to go with two linebackers and five defensive backs.

It involved the shifting of three players, four if you count the moving of Tom Brown from linebacker to middle — guard, and it was designed to at least in part to continue to make the most of the abilities of two veteran stars. At 34 and 33, respectively, cornerman Norm Fieldgate and end Dick Fouts should be as valuable as ever in their new positions.

Fouts moves inside to partner like Cagle at tackle, where he should continue to worry opposing quarterbacks. Fieldgate goes into the backfield as safety, playing in the middle and flanked by two sets of fast, young men. Taking Fouts' place at end will be Greg Findlay, grown to 230 pounds and with talents which seem better suited for that position than the corner he played last year.

Holdover Mike Martin is the other end and holdover Gary Porterfield, who joined the club in mid-season last year, and newcomer Wayne Foster appear set as linebackers.

ONE TO COME

Since Shafer, Ernie Allen and Neal Beaumont will be in the backfield with Fieldgate and a fifth player yet to be chosen from a field which includes holdovers Ron Burton and Ron Morris and newcomers Bud Spicer, Craig Murray and Chick Graning.

"We have to change to meet the demands of the new rules and to fit our personnel," coach Dave Skrien says.

Skrien was happy with the rules changes, rating them as a great improvement.

"It eliminates an area of doubt," he said. "Players involved no longer will have any doubts about a block and it should make it easier for game officials."

A DISCLAIMER

He got no support from his new assistant on defence, Bill Hildebrand. The drafting newcomer from Memphis likes his new job, Canadian football and the Pacific Northwest but he views the new rules with some distaste.

"They're just not fair," he maintains. "There's nothing wrong with limited blocking but it's not right in Canadian football where you can have your backfield in motion. That's an unfair edge for the offense."

He's probably right, but there is compensation in what should be an improved Lion offense and Hildebrand has no complaints about the personnel he has to use to even things out.

Those Potent Pirates Pound Way Into Lead

Pittsburgh's socking Pirates have finally taken the National League lead from San Francisco Giants.

Boasting an amazing 282 team batting average when major league baseball took its annual three-day recess for the all-star game, the Pirates made it last night with a 10-4 rout of the Chicago Cubs.

SEVEN IN EIGHT

It was their seventh win in eight games, and coupled with the Giants' 5-0 shutout in Philadelphia, it combined to leave the Pirates ahead by two percentage points. They have won one less game and lost one less than the Giants.

Last night, the Pirates struck early as they bunched most of their 11 hits in the first four innings for all of their runs. Roberto Clemente and Donn Clendenon each hit their 14th home runs as Bob Veale, overcoming a shaky start behind solid batting support, went on to gain his 11th win in 16 decisions.

Clemente's homer drove in two teammates and Jose Pagan plated three other Pirates with a triple.

JACKSON IN FORM

Veteran Larry Jackson stopped the Giants with five hits as the Phillies broke Gaylor Perry's win streak at seven games and handed him his second loss in 14 decisions.

Meanwhile, the defending champion Los Angeles Dodgers edged their way within four games of the lead with Sandy Koufax, who pitched three all-star innings Tuesday, easing to his 16th win.

Koufax gave up eight scattered hits in beating New York Mets, 4-2, with Lou Johnson's three-run homer giving him a first-inning cushion.

Baltimore Orioles, who have few worries at the moment with a healthy lead in the American League, went down, 3-4, at Detroit to the second-place Tigers. The Orioles threatened in the late innings but great relief pitching by Larry Sherry, Fred Gladding and Orlando Pena stopped them a run short.

Result left the Tigers seven games in arrears, and no one else is closer than 10 games.

Cleveland's slipping Indians lost another one, going down, 1-2, to Chicago White Sox as Tommy John beat Cleveland ace Gary Bell when Wayne Causey broke a 1-1 tie with an eighth-inning double.

New York Yankees gained a hit on their three rivals at the bottom of the heap by edging Kansas City Athletics, 5-4, with a triple and home run by Joe Pepitone and three unearned runs quite a help.

THURSDAY

Wednesday, Miss Tanner had set a record for the 440-yard individual medley in 5:27.2. That's 2.9 seconds better than the Canadian mark she set 11 days ago in Vancouver.

Only other record Thursday was set by Ralph Hutton, a native of Ocean Falls, B.C., attending high school in California. Hutton, 18, swam the 440-yard freestyle in 4:19 for a native record. The old mark was 4:22.5.

Wednesday, Hutton set a native record in the 110-yard backstroke with a time of 1:08.13 seconds better than the former record.

Wednesday's only other record went to Sandy Gilchrist of Ocean Falls who has been attending the University of Southern California. Gilchrist swam the 220-yard freestyle in 2:02 to better his own native record by 11 seconds.

From Victoria, the Olympic relay team placed second in the men's 800-yard relay, and Grant Treloar came sixth in the finals of the 220-yard backstroke.

Brown Set To Work With Clay

From AP, UPI

Jimmy Brown officially announced in London Thursday that he is retiring from professional football with the Cleveland Browns to devote his life to acting and promoting racial equality.

He is in New York, columnist Bill Gross wrote in the New York Post that Brown is expected to take over management of Casius Clay when the heavyweight champion's contract with his Louisville sporting group expires Oct. 26.

Brown, in Britain to make a movie, is a close friend of Clay and owns five per cent of Main Bout, Inc., which has arranged some of Clay's fights.

JENT AT PEAK

The greatest ground-gainer in the history of pro football, the 30-year-old Brown is retiring at the peak of his career. Last year he was voted the National Football League's most valuable player and led the league in rushing with 1,544 yards.

In his nine-year career, he carried the ball 2,359 times and gained 12,312 yards for a 5.2-yard average. He scored 126 touchdowns and led the league in ground-gaining for eight of the nine seasons.

INTENDED TO PLAY

"I had intended to play this year," Brown told a London press conference. "My original reason for coming back was because Art (Cleveland owner Art Modell) wanted me to. Then, when it was pointed out by Art my reporting late put the team in an awkward position, my original reason for staying wasn't there any longer."

Success at Empire Games Predicted By Canadian Track and Field Coach

TORONTO (CP) — The best gold-medal performance by Canadian track and field athletes since the Second World War has been predicted for the 1966 British Empire Games in Jamaica next month.

Paul Pice of Toronto, coach of the Canadian track team in the Aug. 4-13 games, sees a possible three golds in the men's events, with a fourth coming from Nancy McCredie of Brampton, Ont., in the women's shot-put.

EXPECTS 10 MEDALS

Pice, who flew to Edmonton Thursday night with 41 athletes from the Central Ontario Branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, predicted a total of 10 medals—gold, silver and bronze—for the team in Jamaica.

The Canadian team will be chosen Saturday at the close of the two-day trials in Edmonton.

Outstanding candidates for gold medals, Pice listed as: Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., in the 800; Harry Jerome Vancouver, sprints; George Pice, Toronto, discus, and Dave Steen, Burnaby, B.C., shot-put.

CANADA 'MOVES UP'

"Canada has moved up in the Commonwealth rankings since the war, especially since 1962," Pice said in an interview.

"We have better coaching, better facilities and more and more people are becoming more knowledgeable."

"Grants from the National Fitness Council have helped more people get to more national events. Canadian track and field championships are more truly national today. Grants from the council make it possible for more people to get to these meets in off-Olympic and off - B. E. Games years."

Pice stressed that his selections for a medal must make the team—although his gold medal nominees are considered cinches to go to Jamaica.

SOME D.C. HELP

Among the outstanding athletes listed by Pice—but not necessarily as a medal winner—was Peter Radford, formerly of England, who shared the world record of 20.5 for the 220 yards in 1960.

Radford, who won a bronze medal for England in the 1960 Olympics and competed for that country at the B. E. Games in Perth, Australia, in 1962, became eligible for the 1966 Canadian team under a Games residence ruling — he has been living in Toronto for more than six months.

Radford's best times this year have been 9.6 for the 100-yard dash and 21.9 for the 220-yard dash, but Pice said the sprinter has turned in impressive workouts and has nearly a month to go round into shape.

Pice believes that Bill Gardner of Thornhill, Ont., could pick up a medal in the hurdles, that Abby Hoffman of Perth—Canadian men won one gold medal and two bronze in the last games—in 1962 in the 100."

In 1950, Canada's track team won 10 medals, increased the total to 15 in 1954, then fell off to seven in 1958 and three in 1962.

Since the Second World War, Canadian men have won four golds in track, the women none. Men won nine of 11 second-place silver medals and 13 of the 20 third-place bronze medals went to men.

Oakley won a gold medal in the 20,000-metre walk at the 1963 Pan-American Games in Chicago.

Miss Hoffman picked up a gold in the 800 metres at Chicago while Miss McCredie won gold in the shot-put and discus.

Cup Teams Assess Hurts Brazil Remains Favorite

LONDON (CP) — World Cup soccer teams nursed their injuries Thursday, talked about tactics and got ready for crucial Friday games.

All 16 teams in the final of the cup now have played one game, but no clear pattern has emerged.

The bookies reckon it still Brazil to take the championship for the third straight time. The Brazilians are 7-to-4 favorites with England, West Germany and Italy bracketed as second choices at 6 to 1.

Brazilian coach Vicente Feola named a provisional unchanged team for the match with Hungary Friday. Gerson, who is suffering from an ankle injury, was not in the lineup. Feola said his lineup was "subject to medical revision."

That meant he might give Pele, the king of soccer, a rest. Pele was roughly treated Tuesday night when Brazil defeated Bulgaria 2-0 and suffered a slight concussion. Both goals came on free kicks after fouls against Pele. The South American star scored one.

Today's schedule: North Korea vs. Chile Uruguay vs. France Switzerland vs. Spain Brazil vs. Hungary Italy vs. Chile

The 16 final have been divided into four groups in the tournament that ends July 30. England, France, Mexico and Uruguay all have one point in Group One. West Germany and Argentina lead Group Two with two points. Spain and Switzerland have none.

Brazil and Portugal top Group Three with two points. Hungary and Bulgaria have no points. Russia and Italy are leaders in Group Four, with two points. Chile and North Korea have no points.

The top two teams in each group advance to the quarter-finals July 23 after round-robin play.

NO THREAT YET So far there has been little sign of an outstanding challenger to take the cup from Brazil. The free kicks by Pele and Garrincha against Bulgaria were lightning drives of total accuracy that practically no other players in the world could match.

The Brazilians are unbeaten in world competition since 1954. Their last defeat was by Hungary in Switzerland by a 4-2 margin and the Brazilians hope to avenge it today.

He was not stopped. But he was knocked down eight times in those 90 minutes. He was kicked, hit and bruised. Three times he needed doctor's help. Three times he hit back, angry and mortified.

His eleven may reach the final, (but) not Pele.

Pele Won't Make It

HAMBURG (CP) — Die Welt, the widely-circulated West German daily, says that Brazil might reach the finals of the World Cup soccer tournament but its star, Pele, probably would not.

Referring to the rough going Pele had in Brazil's 2-0 win over Bulgaria Tuesday night, the newspaper says:

"A man (Bulgaria's Zetchev) was sent out to handcuff the superman (Pele) of this tournament, to hit him where he is always vulnerable, in his lustre, in the legend that surrounds him, in his physical strength... the order of the day to all Zetchevs of this tournament is 'Stop Pele now.'"

District Zoning Given Airing

More than 100 residents of Langford, Colwood, Glen Lake, Metehosin and Happy Valley Wednesday night had a first-hand explanation of new zoning regulations proposed for their districts.

Six planning and building inspection officials explained that while proposed zoning changes have been published, public hearings will be held before they go into effect.

Included among the proposals is one which would create a commercial belt along Highway 1A.

Several elderly people at the meeting said the proposed amendment which would require new homes set off the street 25 feet would make snow removal difficult.

Others didn't like a proposal which would give the building inspector authority to enter a home at any time. They thought he should have to give some sort of a warning.

The amendments are proposed for Community Planning Area No. 4.

and is sponsored by Simpson's-Sears stores.

The show will be in the Empress Hotel's Georgian Lounge from Aug. 3 to 10. Mr. Price will be here Aug. 8 and 9.

With him he will have approximately 500 paintings and more than 25 sculptures worth a total of about $300,000, said a spokesman for the show on Wednesday.

Admission is free. Prices of the art range from $17.50 to around $20,000, with the average running between $100 and $400.

FEATURED ARTISTS
Among the Canadian artists represented in the show will be Harold Town, Graham Coughtry, Jean Paul Riopel and Victoria's Donald Harvey.

The Vincent Price collection is on its fourth tour of Canada, but this will be only the second time it has appeared here.

Mary Grant Price, wife of Vincent and a native of Victoria, is expected to accompany him. She is a Hollywood set and costume designer and a knowledgeable art critic.

Building Condemned By 'Instant' Board

City council appointed itself an instant local health board Thursday, condemning a Government Street building as being unfit for human habitation, reported the fact to itself and resumed its normal business—all within five minutes.

The bit of legislative legerdemain became necessary when an eviction order—covering 1802-1838 government sandwich vanished into the maw of civic government a month ago, and wasn't heard from again.

The health board motion announced that the building "has become, by reason of the want of cleanliness and other causes, unfit (for a dwelling place) and dangerous to the health of the occupants and public."

Meeting

FRIDAY
● Lions Club of Victoria, Empress Hotel, 12:10 p.m.

OVERTIME

Hair stylist Frederick Jones created 150 different hairdos for the movie, The Group.

The board will now issue a notice to occupants of the building which will require them to move out within 60 days after receipt.

At an earlier meeting, city council agreed to ban the premises as unfit for human habitation but no action was taken because of a "break-down in communications."

Next Stop Broadway

Nicol Comedy Could Make History

By VICTOR STANTON

TORONTO (CP)—A success on the make-or-break stage of Broadway would be an unprecedented achievement for Eric Nicol's Canadian comedy Like Father, Like Fun, which opened Thursday before a capacity audience for a two-week pre-New York warm up.

It would be the first all-Canadian production to make the theatrical grade.

A success, when it opens at the Cort Theatre, Sept. 8, would also bring to an end the 28-year-old jinx that has doomed every show opening a Broadway season.

Unlike most plays that reach Broadway, Like Father, Like Fun will go there directly from Toronto without preliminary presentations in other American cities.

Behind it are good reviews, box-office records and high expectations.

FAMILY STORY
But this was also the happy background of another all-Canadian production which made it to Broadway in 1951 and stayed for only three performances.

The play, Ti-Coq, by French-Canadian actor Gratien Gelinas was hailed as a Canadian masterpiece when it first opened in Montreal in 1948 and within a week of its opening had attracted offers from New York theatres which Gelinas, who both starred in and produced the show, declined.

Successful performances in both French and English followed during the next three years. Critics in Montreal, Toronto and Chicago called it a major theatrical success.

Then came the long-awaited New York opening, rejection by the critics, a quick closure and according to Variety, the show-business weekly, a financial loss of about $30,000.

Like Father, Like Fun is already a more than $100,000 investment for Ed Mirvish, Toronto businessman and theatre owner.

"I am... spending that kind of money... because a lot of people in both Canada and New York are convinced that it is a play that merits the kind of attention we hope to see it get," he said.

NO REGRETS

So far, he has no reason to regret his investment.

The opening at his Royal Alexandra Theatre, a black-tie affair for press, dignitaries, entertainment celebrities and the general public, followed closely the pattern set in Vancouver where the play made its debut March 24 to an audience that overflowed into the lighting booth with more people being turned away at the door.

During its two-week run there, it played to 102 per cent of capacity, with critics uniform in their praise about every facet of the production.

GOOD SALES

Bob Mirvish, Ed's brother, who books shows for the Royal Alex, says advance sales for the Toronto engagement exceeded those for every other production staged at the theatre this year, bigger indeed than the finishing sales for some top Broadway shows with big-name stars imported during the season.

The author of the play was born in Kingston, Ont. but settled early in life in Vancouver. Mr. Nicol has had 10 books published and is three times winner of the Stephen Leacock award for humor.

Only one member of the cast of Like Father, Like Fun has had Broadway experience.

Roy Shuman played in the New York production of Shelagh Delaney's Taste of Honey.

Most of the cast come from Canada's West Coast. An exception is Sylvia Seigel of Montreal. The youngest member of the cast, Reid Anderson, 17, turned down work at the Stratford Shakespearean Festival this summer to join the play.

The production is directed by Malcolm Black, who for the past three years has been artistic director of the Vancouver Festival Theatre.

Subdivisions In Surrey May Separate

Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell expressed concern Thursday about the danger of a fragmentation of the sprawling municipality of Surrey into several smaller municipalities.

A movement has flared up again among various ratepayer groups for the formation of three separate municipalities in this area of the lower mainland, he said.

Surrey is now the largest urban area in B.C., with more than 100 square miles inside its municipal boundary. It has had a tremendous growth rate within a short period of time, upon land which is basically geared to an agricultural economy.

FIVE AREAS

A community plan recently adopted by the Surrey council envisaged eventual development of five urban areas inside the municipality, which is currently faced with a problem of how to provide adequate services for subdivisions which are scattered over a wide area.

The municipal affairs minister said he thinks Surrey council and ratepayers groups should start thinking of some means of forming "an executive-type council with representatives from the five town areas."

SIMILAR TO DISTRICT

He said he would be receptive to formation of such a local government, which would be similar to the regional district concept with the exception that it would be set up by a single municipality.

"I think it would be a retrograde step for Surrey to fly apart," said Mr. Campbell.

Girl Hitchhikers Fined in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—Municipal court saw history made here when each of three young girls were fined $13.50 for hitch-hiking in the city, contrary to a local bylaw. Montreal police earlier this year had said they intended doing something about the growing number of girls thumbing rides in the city.

After Marrying 'Prince Charming'

BB Flies to Paradise

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Sex kitten Brigitte Bardot was married to German industrialist-playboy Gunther Sachs Van Opel in a surprise ceremony early Thursday morning and remained in hiding here before boarding a chartered plane for a honeymoon flight to Tahiti.

The star of scores of French movies and bridegroom Sachs spent most of the day at the home of attorney William Coulthard in which they were married by a district judge in a post-midnight ceremony.

TO PARADISE

Miss Bardot, 31, and Sachs, 53, have booked passage via Air France for the Polynesian paradise leaving from Los Angeles international airport.

It is the third marriage for the French actress who was previously wed to director Roger Vadim and actor Jacques Charrier, by whom she has a six-year-old daughter. Sachs is a widower whose wife died in 1958.

SLIGHT ACQUAINTANCES

The couple, who had known each other slightly for 10 years, became friends only last month when they were invited to a dinner party.

Sachs said they decided to marry two weeks ago, eloping to Las Vegas to avoid European photographers. Of his bride, the dark-haired hair to an automobile and motorcycle empire, said: "Brigitte is all women in one. She is tender, enthusiastic, funny, and she is beautiful."

'PRINCE CHARMING'
The bosomy blonde star said: "I have never known a man like him . . . A merveille! He is a gentleman, a real prince charming, and I adore him."

Miss Bardot wore a short purple shift dress and carried a single chrysanthemum during the wedding ceremony. Sachs was dressed casually in a blue blazer, white slacks and sandals. He wore no socks.

After the ceremony, performed by Judge John Mow-

Brigitte and husband Gunther before boarding plane

bray, Miss Bardot asked what the date was. Informed that she was married July 14, she squealed happily: "How wonderful. This is Bastille Day in France, our great national holiday."

And then she kissed the judge.

Hollywood Comeback

Exercise, Careful Eating Helps Star Keep Looks

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Recently a Hollywood matron encountered Merle Oberon at a party and exclaimed: "Good lord, you can't go on looking young forever!"

"Of course not," replied the actress, "but why not try?" She was born Estelle Merle O'Brien Thompson in Tasmania, but don't ask how many years ago. Suffice to say that her first notable film was The Private Life of Henry VIII with Charles Laughton, and that was 34 years ago.

NEW ROLE

After the lapse of a dozen years, Miss Oberon is back playing a Hollywood role in the film; she enacts a duchess to Michael Rennie's duke. Her youthfulness naturally comes up in an interview, and it is a subject she doesn't tire of hearing about.

"Remaining as young-looking as possible is good for everyone as long as they don't let it become a phobia. It has never been that with me. If I grow old, I grow old. Meanwhile I owe it to myself, to God, and to those who have to look at me, to maintain the best appearance I can."

How does she manage it?
"Exercise. I swim every day of the year and do exercises in the water, too. I have swimming pools at all my homes—here, in Acapulco, Mexico City and Oahu."

"I eat sparingly but wisely."
Miss Oberon leads the kind of life most women would envy. Her husband is the Italian-born Mexican industrialist Bruno Pagliai, and they travel between their four homes, as well as to New York and Europe. They have two children, 6 and 7.

Bing's Brother Dies of Cancer

SHARON, Conn. (AP) — Everett Crosby, who managed the singing career of his brother Bing for many years, has died aged 70.

He had been confined to a wheelchair since both legs were amputated in 1964 because of a circulatory ailment. Last year he was treated for cancer of the throat and it was hoped he had recovered.

Everett, the second of seven children of Harry L. and Catherine Crosby, began managing his brother's career in 1928 when Bing came to Los Angeles looking for work as a singer.

Everett got his brother a job with Paul Whiteman's band. He also arranged for Bing's first film appearance.

Everett claimed as his discoveries such stars as Robert Preston and Rod Cameron.

He was president of Everett Crosby Productions, Bing Crosby Enterprises, and secretary of the Crosby Investment Co.

Floods Hit North India

CALCUTTA (AP)—More than 150 villages in India's North Bihar state are under water after three rivers in the region burst their banks, reports reaching here said. At least 300,000 persons have been affected and the flood waters are still rising, threatening other areas.

CPR's Trailer Princess on Trial

CPR's newest ferry, Trailer Princess, left wharf Thursday for trials by remodelers McKay-Cormack. Former U.S. Navy LST will carry thirty-four 40-foot trailers or 25 railroad cars and will operate out of Sidney, Nanaimo and Vancouver. Conversion of 325-foot craft started late last year. CPR hopes to have service started by next week. In addition to CPR trailers, Princess will transport other companies' vehicles.

Colwood Troubles

'Pressure, Threats' Irk Shopping Centre Owner

By NANCY BROWN

The government is saying "pay your taxes and don't call us, we'll call you," according to the vice-president of Tankoos Yarmen Ltd., James F. Armstrong.

The company, which owns Colwood Shopping Plaza, recently closed Colwood Laun-derette because it faced criminal charges for allowing waste from the laundrette to be discharged into a ditch.

"You cannot expect industry, or for that matter home owners, to locate in an area which is under-serviced and overtaxed," said Mr. Armstrong.

He said the Plaza had been under attack by the provincial authorities for pollution of a ditch, which runs under the Sooke Road, and claimed that effluent from the plaza has to be hauled away twice daily, as no other form of disposal is permitted by the government.

"I submit that this is not fair treatment to a tax-paying property-owner," he said.

"There can be no denying that the Sooke Road ditch problem needs correcting but it is unfortunate that the only way the supervising body has chosen to exercise its authority is to threaten everyone connected with the centre with closure."

DIFFERENT

"Our representative approached the health department over a year ago for advice and assistance—the result, one department advised to extend the ditch to the stream, another department said no, you cannot pollute the stream."

"Soon after this, the pressure was put on the owners to cease effluent disposal into the ditch, knowing full well that this same effluent has been entering the ditch since 1959."

"We get no assistance from the authorities, just conversation and legal pressure. The rules are changing now, but the players cannot leave the game because they own the property and must live with the burden."

Boom-Busting Plans Not Tough Enough?

OTTAWA (CP)—Last March's 5½ months to go in the year budget measures may not be sufficient to restrain investment in construction this year, Finance Minister Sharp conceded Thursday.

Pressures on the economy are even stronger than indicated in late March when he brought down his budget in the Commons. Mr. Sharp told the Senate committee on banking and commerce.

Intended checks on expansion may not greatly modify construction spending, he said.

'POSSIBLE'

"Do you mean that physical expansion may be down and that dollar expansion may be up?" asked Senator Wallace McWhetee (PC-Ontario).

"It is possible," Mr. Sharp replied. But he added that with trial and government construction plans totalling $10,000,000,000.

The committee quickly completed its study of changes to the Income Tax Act after examining Mr. Sharp.

The bill incorporating the changes was passed by the Commons Wednesday and now returns to the Senate for final rending.

Liberals Win Twice

OTTAWA (CP)—A controversial labor bill won approval in principle in the Commons Thursday night as the government outvoted the opposition twice.

New Democrats forced a formal vote in an attempt to delay passage of the bill until the fall but, despite Conservative support, were defeated 60 to 45.

A Liberal motion to give second reading to the bill, which arises from last month's waterfront strike in Quebec, was upheld 62 to 43.

COMMISSION

The government bill would require both parties in the 33-day strike to accept the findings of a government-appointed commissioner who is to look into automation procedures for loading and unloading of ships.

"If the inquiry commission findings aren't acceptable to the union, does the minister think we will have peace on the waterfront?" NDP Leader T. C. Douglas asked Labor Minister Nicholson just before the vote.

David Lewis (NDP—York South) in moving the amendment, said the bill should be sent to the Commons standing committee on labor and employment.

Rhodesian Issue

Africans, Asians Back 'Get Tough' Proposal

LONDON (CP)—Zambia's demand for open-ended support from Britain in the fight against white-supremacist Rhodesia won considerable support Thursday at a Commonwealth sanctions committee meeting.

Some eight African and Asian countries backed the plea of Zambian Foreign Minister Simon Kapwepwe, who said that present economic sanctions against Rhodesia have failed and his Negro-ruled country plans tougher action against its rebellious central African neighbor, which seized independence from Britain last year.

But Canada, while saying it is ready and willing to assist Zambia in the Commonwealth campaign against Rhodesia's white-minority regime, stipulated that first it wants specific information on essential needs.

The upshot of the two-day meeting was that the Commonwealth representatives decided to reconvene next week a sub-committee on aid to Zambia. This group, dormant for the last two months, will study Zambia's requirements as submitted by the Zambian representative and also consider what other Commonwealth countries can do to help. This information on the closed-doors meetings was provided by informants.

Land-locked Zambia, heavily dependent on Rhodesian trade in the past, has cut these links drastically and would like to end them altogether provided necessary improvements in communications and other fields are financed by Britain.

Endorsement of Zambia's plea came from Trinidad, Kenya, Sierra Leone, Ghana, Nigeria, Guyana formerly British Guiana, India and Uganda.

Gray's Columbia ready for launching in Clayoquot Sound

Fort's Ruins Found

Historic Meares Island Site 174 Years Old

By GEORGE NICHOLSON

A group of Tofino men have found the remains of a historical fort built on Meares Island in the winter of 1791-92. It was the winter quarters of the American trading ship Columbia and the site of Fort Defiance.

In the winter of 1791-92 that Capt. Robert Gray wintered his ship, the Columbia, in Clayoquot Sound, and while there he built the schooner Adventure, the second vessel to be constructed on this coast north of Mexico.

The first was the schooner Northwest America, which Meares built and launched at Friendly Cove, Nootka, in 1778.

Since the Indians were troublesome, to protect his men from possible attack while building the schooner, Gray built a fort which he named Fort Defiance.

Last week, a group of young Tofino men, headed by Kenneth Gibson, reported that after months spent searching the shores of Meares Island for clues, they found the site.

Their report, along with charcoal, bricks and other exhibits found at the site, has been sent to Dr. Willard Ireland, provincial archaeologist, for scientific examination.

After leaving Meares, he went south along the coast to discover and name (after his ship) the Columbia River. Gray's Harbour, Wash., also was named after himself.

Historical records indicate only that Gray built his fort on the shores of Meares Island and moored the Columbia nearby, but all descriptions of the actual site are vague.

Over the years, noted Canadian and American historians endeavored to pinpoint the site but always without success.

University Board

Editor Joins Governors

Brian A. Tobin, editor of the Victoria Daily Times, has been elected to the board of governors of the University of Victoria.

Mr. Tobin, a member of the university senate since 1963, replaces Dr. R. M. Pettie, dominion astronomer, who died this spring.

The senate administers academic matters and the board of governors controls finances.

Three board members appointed in 1963 have been re-appointed, university president Dr. Malcolm Taylor announced Thursday. They are H. B. Elworthy, L. G. McKenzie and W. C. Mearns, all of Victoria.

Elected to the senate by the university's teaching faculties were: Dr. Peter L. Smith, chairman of the department of classics (by the faculty of arts and science); Prof. George A. Brand, supervisor of practice teaching (by the faculty of education); Prof. Roger J. Bishop, head of the department of English, and Dr. Derek V. Ellis, department of biology (both by the joint faculties).

All four professors have been elected for three years, beginning July 1.

And They Said It Wouldn't Sell

The fourth edition of Victoria author George Nicholson's book, Vancouver Island's West Coast, is now being printed.

The book, which covers two centuries of west coast history — 1782 to 1962 — was first printed in September, 1962. The second edition came out a year later, and in the following year the third edition was printed.

After 18 months of writing Mr. Nicholson said he sent the book to publishers in the east who told him it would never sell.

He published the book himself and has sold approximately 5,000 copies.

Air Fleet 'Chickenfeed' Compared to Ontario's

Canada's fastest-growing province owns barely enough airplanes to keep it in the big league, says highways minister Gagliardi.

On his way to a cabinet meeting Thursday morning he staunchly defended his department's operation of B.C.'s fleet of nine aircraft which fly out of Patricia Bay Airport.

But Mr. Gagliardi skirted around reporters' questions about how much the overall air operation is costing the taxpayers, a subject which Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said this week will be given a lot of attention during the next session of the legislature.

The minister said he would "welcome an investigation" into the operation of the fleet.

It includes a recently-acquired, second-hand Lear jet, one Beechcraft Expediter converted to turbo-prop engines, four piston-driven Expeditors, one Otter, one amphibious Widgeon and one Beaver.

"This is chickenfeed in comparison with Ontario. It has over 60 planes registered," said the highways minister.

"Everybody takes pride in our highways, our forestry and mining work we get done, and here we are quibbling about airplanes."

"We are doing the barest amount of flying to keep government in a forward position."

NOT AVAILABLE

Mr. Gagliardi said it costs about 20 cents per mile to operate the fleet but added that information was not readily available as to how far the planes fly each year or how much the air arm costs each year.

The minister also said people who fly in light aircraft operated by small private airlines are risking their lives and that he would not ask government officials to fly in these planes.

BEST PILOT

The government's fleet is carefully serviced and has the best pilots available, he said.

"So you tell me who's flying those bush planes. I'm a responsible individual and I'm not going to be part of an operation that's not run on a proper basis — you have to have a top man behind the stick because a plane is only as good as its pilot."

Mermaids And Gold In Saanich

Discovery of mermaids and a gold mine in Saanich has prompted highways department's acquisition of land there, highways minister Gagliardi said Thursday.

He brushed off a reporter's query into the possibility of a relocated Swartz Bay-Victoria highway running along a crest east of the existing Patricia Bay Highway.

Asked why an arbitrator was appointed to negotiate for the purchase by the highways department of 7.4 acres of land on Cordova Bay Road east of Santa Clara Avenue, he replied:

"We struck a gold mine there and we want to dig it out. We also found some mermaids there too and we think they'll make a good tourist attraction."

Centennial Stadium

City Will Cover Share of Deficit

By TED PULFORD

Victoria city council Thursday guaranteed to pay its share of the $65,000 deficit which must be raised before the Greater Victoria Centennial Stadium Committee can begin work on the proposed sports centre.

The motion, which sailed through council without a dissenting murmur, in effect commits the city to payment of 40 per cent or $26,325 of the $65,000 deficit.

Equimait, Oak Bay and Saanich will be expected to pay the remaining $38,675. Successful bid for construction of the new stadium was $549,700 for the main structure alone. The committee originally had $520,000, but sewer contracts and architects' fees, together totalling $102,000, pared the fund down considerably.

FINISHING TOUCHES While making up the $65,000 deficit which will give the green light for signing contracts and actually beginning work, the city and its neighboring municipalities will be asked to dig up a further $65,000 before finishing touches can be added to the project.

This is the amount required to construct field floodlighting facilities and a running track. Until the lights are installed, of course, events in the new stadium will be restricted to daylight only.

NEXT YEAR A further motion recommends that the 1967 city council "look with favor" on the city and its neighbors shouldering the burden of collecting this additional $65,000 next year.

By approving the motion, this year's council ensures that the $26,325 comprising the city's share will be ready and waiting in next year's budget and will merely require approval by the new council.

SUPPORT In making the motions, Ald. Michael Griffin volunteered a clarification of the university's position.

It has been suggested, he said, that the university had provided little but moral support in the stadium fund drive.

"The contrary is true," he claimed. "The university is contributing $220,000 worth of land to the project."

LAND GIFT The question has been raised whether the university is contributing its fair share to the big project.

University president Malcolm Taylor says donation of the land for the stadium and parking lots represents a major contribution to the cause.

Others are less sure. Since the stadium will lie on the university site anyway, the question has been raised whether or not the campus contribution lies at least partly in making a donation to itself.

Parks Chief Praised By Council

Parks Superintendent Herbert Warren's "dedication to duty" in adamantly refusing to allow a power line to cross Thetis Lake Park, came in for the plaudits of city council Thursday.

Council received a letter from the Community Planning Association of Canada, Capital Region Branch, which praised Mr. Warren for his refusal to allow B.C. Hydro the right to string wires across the park.

"Parks," said the letter, "are a priceless heritage and Mr. Warren is to be commended for his dedication to the best interests of the public."

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow was quick to agree. "I think we should thank Mr. Warren," he said. "This is not the kind of letter we usually get."

Jeffels Named To Loan Board Dean Ronald Jeffels of the University of Victoria has been appointed to the Canada Student Loan Board. The provincial cabinet made the appointment to the board, which decides on applications for student loans.

Money Bylaw

Voters Will Decide On Colwood Pool

By JACK FRY

Legislative Reporter

The people of Colwood, Langford and Metchoin will probably be given a chance to vote whether they want to build a $250,000 public swimming pool on the old Colwood racetrack as a Centennial project.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Thursday he has no objection to such a project, providing the people are given a chance to decide for themselves whether they want the pool.

A certain amount of red tape will have to be sorted out before a money bylaw can be prepared, therefore no date has been set for the vote.

The proposal is for the Greater Victoria regional board — of which Colwood, Langford and Metchoin are members — to accept the construction and operation of a centennial swimming pool as one of its functions, although none of the other member municipalities would have to participate or share in its cost.

Owner-electors in Colwood, Langford and Metchoin would have to approve a money bylaw and subsequently make annual repayments, including debt charges, until the project is paid off.

The regional board could then establish a special commission which would take over administration of the pool's construction, operation and maintenance.

Mr. Campbell said he has advised the regional board that he is willing to do the paperwork necessary for the addition of the swimming pool project as one of the board's functions.

Nobody To Phone

There is a man in Victoria with no one to phone.

Walter Acraman, 2440 Quadra, won a free telephone call anywhere in the world as a prize at All Book Day, Saturday.

The prize was offered in the form of a telephone call to the Victoria area.

"I don't know anyone to phone," said Mr. Acraman, Thursday. "I just don't know what to do with this prize."

'Pigeonholing' Irks Mayor

A committee recommendation, asking the Regional District Board to consider assuming responsibility for the entire field of recreation in the area, blew up a brief storm cloud in city council Thursday.

Mayor A. W. Toome took exception to the wording of the recommendation.

"The municipalities themselves should have this responsibility," he said.

"It is a question that could properly be considered by the Inter-municipal Committee."

"PIGEONHOLED" Ald. Michael Griffin said the suggestion that the regional board be called in was designed to get action. "If this goes before the Inter-municipal Committee, it will be pigeonholed."

Mayor Toome looked sharply down from his chair: "I assure you, sir, that the matter will not be pigeonholed. Your mayor is on the Inter-municipal Committee."

Ald. Griffin smiled but wouldn't back down.

"MYSTERY" It was Ald. Clyde Savage who stepped into the breach. "The whole thing is a complete mystery to me. I'm quite in the dark."

The question went back to committee for further study.

Dirty Civic Panes Face Cleanup Soon

Victoria's city hall may soon lose forever its reputation as the new building with the dirtiest windows in town.

City council Thursday received tenders for the chore of cleaning all the glass in the civic complex surrounding Centennial Square.

The tenders ranged all the way from $9,116 per year down to $3,780.

Some time ago, it was suggested that the city do the job with its own staff.

In the uproar which followed, tempers were frayed and charges of civic interference with private enterprise were hurled.

As the hubbub continued, the windows got grimmer.

Finally, private enterprise won and the city called for the tenders.

Police Seeking Mental Patient

Victoria area police are still seeking an escaped mental patient believed in for the city.

Russell Townsend, 35, escaped from Riverview mental hospital at Esquimalt Wednesday. He is five feet, six inches tall; 153 pounds; brown eyes and hair, and dark complexion. He was last seen wearing a sports shirt, sports jacket and brown trousers.

Birdies Didn't Help

MELBOURNE (AP) — Stan Ely thinks golf is for the birds.

Crows took two of his golf balls after he played shots on the fifth hole at Leongatha.

As he was about to drive on the seventh hole he was distracted when a kookaburra laughing jackass bird started to laugh from a nearby tree. Ely duffed the shot. About to play his third shot at the seventh, the kookaburra laughed again. And Ely duffed again.

Finally he got the ball onto the green. Out of the tree came the kookaburra. It picked up the ball and flew off.

Ely said after the game he has had his share of birdies but never two crows and one kookaburra in two holes.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I know you receive many letters from unwed mothers because you have printed them. Why don't you ever publish a letter from an unwed father?

You, Ann Landers, have done more to damage the image of the unwed father than anyone in this country, and I resent it. My son is a lovely young man, just 19 years of age, and every time you print a letter from an unwed mother he shows it to me and says, "Why doesn't Ann Landers ever say anything good about US — we have a good son."

Are you blind that you don't realize some girls run after boys, pestering them, get them full of liquor and then offer them money in such a way that they can't refuse? This is exactly what happened to my son and to some of his fine friends. Yet the boy always gets called the terrible names and ends up with a black eye. I dare you print this. — MOTHER OF A GOOD SON.

Jaques-Small

Sapphire Ring 'Something Old'

An heirloom sapphire ring fulfilled the traditions of "something old" and "something blue" for Helen Anne Small, when she became the bride of Glenn Cameron Jaques.

The ring, which belonged to her maternal grandmother, was the only jewelry accent to the bride's floor-length gown of white silk. Pearl embroidery adorned the empire waistline of the sheath gown and a full train swept back from a bridal bow at the waist. Her four-tier veil of silk illusion net mistled from a tiara of pearls and she carried a white gladiolus and yellow roses in her cascade bouquet.

White stocks and yellow snapdragons decorated St. John's Anglican Church when Canon Grahame B. Baker heard marriage vows exchanged between the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester E. Small, 1564 Elm Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. F. Jaques, 4280 Gordon Head Road.

"Praise to the Lord, the Almighty, the King of Creation," was played as the bride entered the church on the arm of her father. As the bride and groom left the church, members of St. John's Junior Auxiliary, of which the bride is assistant leader, formed a guard of honor.

Empire-line gowns of mint green chiffon over peau de soie, styled with white lace over-blouses, were worn by maid of honor Miss Lois Jaques and bridesmaid Miss Sheila Smell. Their tony rose headpieces were edged with veils and they carried bouquets of yellow carnations.

The junior attendants, Eileen Holman and Marion Yole, were in floor-length gowns of yellow linen blend, with tony wedding ring headpieces. They carried colonial bouquets of yellow carnations.

Robert P. Story was best man. Guests were ushered to pews marked with yellow ribbon roses by Charles B. Small, Gary Grafton, John Polkinghorne, Gordon McBride and Rick Acres.

A vase of yellow sweetheart roses topped the three-tier wedding cake which centered the head table at the reception following in the home of the groom's parents. The table was covered with a hand-crocheted tablecloth and decorated with roses in silver vases. John C. Smell proposed the toast to the bride.

The couple are now making their home at 2840 Wyndesat Avenue, following a honeymoon trip up-island. For travelling, the new Mrs. Jaques chose a cream and gold suit, topped with a coat in cream and blouses of mint green accessories and corsage of white gladiolus and yellow roses completed the ensemble.

This is

the other half begins in vineyards uniquely favored by soil and climate, where the Andres' vines of old world heritage, French Columbar, Golden Chasselas and Johannesburg Riesling are tended by master vintagers.

After careful pressing of the choicest grapes, the new-born wine is deposited in oaken casks to age and mellow naturally. Every unhurried step, from the ripening of the grapes to the final bottling, is attended by experts who are dedicated to producing fine wine.

This is the half of the story most people never know, but without it, there couldn't be a happy ending.

Canada Sitting on Resources

"The world's increasing resources are not going to stand any slack attitude on the part of Canadians with regard to exploitation of our natural resources," said Attorney-General Robert Bonner last night when he addressed delegates to the 30th biennial convention of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs at their closing banquet in the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Bonner said that in relation to the size of the country, Canada has fewer people than any other nation on earth.

"We're sitting on these resources with which we have done very little and if you have notions of others' covetousness, right now only 100 miles from us there is a fleet of Russian fishing boats, 100 strong.

"We can't afford to take our future too casually," he added, with reminders that the world's population has doubled in the past 100 years and is expected to double again before the end of the century.

Mr. Bonner spoke of the difficulties Canada faces because of her vast size. Even in British Columbia, which is roughly the area of Western Europe, one of the basic problems is communication throughout the province.

"There has been wide disparity over the success of confederation today. Unfortunately the Maritimes hasn't been so successful. The standard of living in Quebec is also below the national average, which arouses consternation in Quebecers when they look at the extensive wealth of Ontario."

However, on the positive side,

England Paints Up For July Visits From the Queen

By MARGARET SAVILE

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth II never sees Britain as it really is.

Officials go around planting flowers, hiding "unsightly objects" and making everything pretty before she arrives for a visit. Often they pull up the plants again when she leaves.

At Stirling railway station in Scotland, they once chastely considered it necessary to board over the sign on the door saying "gentlemen."

They also considered the station parcels depot unbecomely and screened it with artificial greenery. All this because the royal train stopped there for just half an hour.

Many gallons of paint are always used to cover up anything which local dignitaries think might offend the Queen.

Their preparations are never made at the desire of the Queen. On the contrary, she often wishes she could see the real Britain and is quietly amused when she hears about the cover-ups afterward. But she does appreciate the loyalty behind all the enthusiasm to please her.

This enthusiasm is most frank during this month because the Queen makes many of her British visits in July and in hope of getting good summer weather.

Last Thursday, she made an official visit to the ancient city of Truro in Cornwall.

It has cobbled streets and the city fathers felt that the Queen, wearing high heels, might trip on them and twist her ankle. So a carpet of plastic sheets covered with tarmac was laid on the cobblestones especially for her to walk on. Workmen removed the sheets as soon as she passed by.

Men once spent days making special holes in new sidewalks so that flagpoles could be erected in Highfield in the southwestern county of Somerset for one drive through the town by the Queen.

Flowers and bunting are expensive, not to mention elaborate lunch for perhaps 100 persons to be served.

Incidentally the Queen is a simple eater. When out she dutifully eats whatever is put in front of her but her own choice for lunch at home in Buckingham Palace is often no more than cold meat with salad and orange juice — a far cry from vintage champagne.

Some years ago the Queen paid an official visit to a pub at Stevenage, one of the new towns built outside London. Down came all the pin-up pictures behind the bar.

When she travelled to Manchester to open the new law courts there, a line of old cottages due for demolition were hastily repainted in case the Queen happened to glance across the road.

Not long ago the Queen paused in Durham in northeastern England for a cup of tea at the model house of Eric Tindle. He had heard about the honor to be done to him and redecorated his whole place beforehand.

"That cup of tea knocked me back nearly 80 pounds ($225)," he said afterwards.

When the Queen once visited the English Channel Islands, the authorities insisted that every boat in the harbor should be repainted. But they did make one concession. They said it was only necessary to paint the side which the Queen would see.

Bridal Shower

In honor of bride-elect Miss Sandra Mitcham who was married last week, Mrs. J. Cronk and Mrs. J. Beale co-hosted a surprise miscellaneous shower in their home on Townsend Drive. Lovely corsages were presented to Miss Mitcham, bride's mother Mrs. M. Mitcham, bride's grandmother Mrs. J. Nott, and groom's mother Mrs. W. Boll. Gifts were displayed in a decorated container under an umbrella. Later in the evening the bride-elect cut a decorated shower cake.

Guests included: Mrs. D. Melton, Mrs. B. Horner, Mrs. E. Arsenault, Mrs. H. Flynn, Mrs. R. Craig, Mrs. R. Speight, Mrs. B. Paine, Mrs. S. Chew, Mrs. S. Elgin, Mrs. E. Linfield, Mrs. L. Richards, Mrs. D. Jeffs, Mrs. A. Farrey, Mrs. J. MacKinnon, Mrs. M. Allnut, Mrs. E. Flynn, Mrs. M. Fairbairn, Mrs. J. Goddard, and Misses Rhonda Mitcham, Bonnie Cronk, Kelly Beale.

Trip to Oregon For Honeymoon

First United Church was the scene of a pretty summer wedding when Yvonne Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Muir, Blenkinsop Road, became the bride of Mr. David John Leeming, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Leeming, Bond Street.

Rev. Marvin Fowler officiated at the ceremony and Mr. David Palmer was organist.

The bride chose a gown fashioned on empire lines of Chantilly lace over peau de soie with scooped neckline and lily point sleeves. A train descended from the waistline and her floor length veil misted from a white headband. Gardenias and stephanotis were in her bouquet.

Miss Frances Muir was maid of honor for her sister, and the groom's sister, Miss Joanne Leeming and Miss Patricia Ridings were bridesmaids. They wore floor-length peau de soie gowns with lace jackets. The bridesmaids wore in pale green and the maid of honor wore yellow as did the dainty flower girl, Jeanette Edwards.

Mr. Robert Smith was best man and ushers were Mr. William Macdonald, Mr. Brian Carr-Harris and Mr. Malcolm Sharp.

During the ceremony the Amity Singers of which both bride and groom are members, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Lord in My Shepherd." Mr. Robert Hall sang "Praise My Soul the King of Heaven."

A reception followed at the Faculty Club, Gordon Head Campus, University of Victoria. Mr. T. W. Walker proposed the toast to his niece.

For a honeymoon trip to the Oregon Coast, the new Mrs. Leeming wore a white sheath dress with matching coat, pink flowered hat and pink carnation corsage.

Parliament on Holiday

But Wait Till October

Highs, Lows of Legislation

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The parliamentary recess is starting, at last, and MPs are scampering home with memories of a session that reached a degrading low and a glorious high.

The low point was the Minister's revelations, which shook the foundations and left it a dirty, political arena commanding little public respect.

The high point was the reaction to the Minister's affair, when a conscious campaign began, in all parties, to win back public respect for Parliament.

Since then, there has been a frenzied processing of legislation, none sensational but all important, and unparalleled co-operation between the government and the official opposition, the Tories.

My Duty

Tory house leader Michael Starr explains: "Parliament and its image had been downgraded in various ways and for various reasons. 'As a member of parliament, it is my duty to improve it.'"

The present peaceful condition has been achieved through deferring to the full and really dangerous debates.

The Bank Act revision, which would raise the interest ceiling from six to seven per cent. And, later, remove it entirely.

The Tories, New Democrats and Creditists oppose it. And there is revolt in the Liberal caucus.

The Minister's report. This will be revealed during the Commons recess. And the parliamentary typhoon can't come until after Oct. 3, when the MPs return.

Medicare. After first reading, the bill has been shelved to the fall. Its fate may depend on an agreement to be worked out with the province of Quebec, where the new government of Daniel Johnson has declared it doesn't want medicare yet.

Two Roles

Ironically, the government will be cast in two contrasting roles:

● The party of big business, trying to pump more money into the treasuries of the banks.

● The party of socialism, trying to ram medicare through parliament.

But that, of course, is the Liberal party today, a party of two contrasting wings.

Looking back over it, the session certainly made massive headlines.

There was Gerda, who seemed for a while to be a swiftness Mata Hari, but later emerged as a $15-a-time prostitute who befriended important people.

They're Human

The public was tantalized and astounded that public figures, after all, were human.

● There was the Seven Days affair. Oh, what a windy time was that!

On and on it went, through weeks of inquiry before a Commons committee and an inquiry by Vancouver publisher Stuart Keale.

It was all superb evidence of the Marshall McLuhan thesis, that in the electronic age, a communication is everything.

The event itself, the removal of the co-producers of Seven Days and later a rash of recent resignations had long since caused polite yawns in parliament.

The Bomb

● And there was the bomb, not the figurative kind, but the kind that went off in a washroom near the Prime Minister's office, killing a poor, demoted man, who held it.

What about the legislation? New Democratic house leader Stanley Knowles says:

Starr

And that the personalities of the house leaders has a great deal to do with it.

Many people claim, the improvement began when the Liberals switched from Guy Favreau to George Melbrink as house leader; and the Tories switched from Gordon Churchill to Michael Starr.

Red Rags

This is not, necessarily, criticism of those who were retired. But they were veterans of many battles, red rags to other parties and too controversial to negotiate in a peaceful atmosphere.

McDermott and Starr got on remarkably well. And McDermott has said, many times, how delighted he is with the co-operation he is getting.

Mr. Starr cautiously calls it "one of the more productive sessions we have had in a number of years."

Tug Sinks At Nanaimo

NANAIMO (CP)—Gander, a 35-foot tug owned by Nanaimo Marine Services, rolled over and sank Thursday as it was helping unload a self-dumping log barge off Nanaimo. A tow line between the Gander and the barge Island Yarder pulled tight and rolled the tug over. No one was injured.

'A Disgrace'

Said Mr. Knowles: "While the volume of business transacted has been heavy, I think it is a disgrace that the parliament of Canada is taking a rest without having provided an increase in the old age pension and without passing the medicare bill."

Mr. Knowles, while unhappy about the government's conduct over pensions and medicare, agrees that co-operation between the parties has been much better.

Viet Nam War Protested

Legislature Picketed

The face under the Batman mask at the Legislative Buildings Wednesday wasn't new to Vancouver Island.

It belonged to Peter Baxter, who says he is a former tug worker at Port Alberni, forestry lookout man near Duncan and bookkeeper at a bank in Qualicum.

Now living in Los Angeles, he came here to protest the war in Viet Nam. He wore placards proclaiming "Batman Baxter for AD HOC (Viet Nam) president of the United States" and "Batman Baxter is a Nervous Nellie."

His schedule was to take him to Duncan later, where he said he would pose for newspaper photographers in his outfit ascending Bald

Mountain, where he once worked. He made headlines three years ago when he picketed the University of British Columbia, announcing he would refuse to kneel as tradition prescribed when he received his degree. He did not graduate at that time.

Namu Death Caused By Drowning

SEATTLE (AP) — An autopsy performed on Namu, Seattle's killer whale, confirms that death was due to drowning, the Virginia Mason Research Centre said Thursday.

Namu died Saturday when he became entangled in the metal railing of his display pen at the Seattle public aquarium.

"Death was caused by drowning," a centre spokesman said, "but something else, physical or emotional, are trying to find out what it might have been."

Byelections Promised By Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — Byelections to fill two House of Commons vacancies will be held before long, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Thursday.

The Quebec riding of Nicolet-Yamaska became vacant when Conservative Clement Vincent resigned. The Newfoundland riding of Burin-Burgoyne became vacant last week when C. W. Carter was appointed to the Senate.

State Secretary Judy Lamman, at least, is not leaving her colleagues still at work in the Commons, as she heads off today for two weeks in Australia and New Zealand.

Her objective? "Centennial promotion," said a spokesman.

City Profit 'Improper'

Charges that the city will be earning an improper profit if it carries on with a proposed increase in permit fees were levelled at a city council meeting Thursday.

Increases — which cover permits to be issued for a wide range of building activities — were recommended earlier in the month by city manager Dennis Young and approved by the finance committee.

The increases, which bring Victoria permits into line with those of Vancouver, will return an estimated $9,500 extra in revenue.

Ald. Percy Frampton attacked the increases on the basis that, before they were raised, the city showed a profit on these transactions.

"Surely it is not our intention to make a profit on these services," he said. "We should be concerned only with covering the cost."

As for bringing this city "into line" with Vancouver, the alderman suggested that Victoria — just this once — should make up its own mind.

Orchard Spray Blamed For Killing 57 Birds

A group of Kelowna naturalists says a large number of wild birds died after an orchard was sprayed with insecticide in that area.

The report of the Central Okanagan Naturalists Club was obtained Tuesday from Dr. Clifford Carl, curator of the provincial museum here.

The naturalists said a spraying with Parathion, a potent insecticide, killed 52 Cedar waxwings, four robins and a female Lanius bunting.

WITHIN HOUR

The six-acre orchard was sprayed Sunday, June 5, at a concentration of one pound of Parathion to 100 gallons of solvent.

Within an hour after the spraying, three waxwings were brought to the home of Sherburne Chaplin, the area's SPCA director.

They were paralyzed, their feet were balled up, the beaks slightly open and the heads moving from side to side.

EYEDROPPER

In addition to the carcasses, the group found 32 other waxwings convulsing. All except five of this group were saved.

Milk was pumped into them with an eyedropper and it was many hours later before they regained sufficient visual coordination to pick up their food properly.

"One of the fascinating aspects was the extraordinary tameness of these birds. They did not try to flutter about even when fully recuperated," says the report.

"They would hop to one's finger to be fed and could be picked up with no signs of struggling."

Father Sought

VANCOUVER (CP)— Authorities in Calgary have been unable to trace the father of Gerald Joseph Legacy, 19, who hanged himself at Oakalla Prison Tuesday. The dead youth's name was released Thursday.

Mechanic Builds Fire Truck

Capt. Robert McKean, master mechanic of the Victoria fire department, was praised Wednesday for the fire truck he built himself.

For $10,561 and four months of part-time work he put together a vehicle that would normally have cost $20,000. Mayor A. W. Toome and members of the city's fire wardens committee applauded the accomplishment.

Capt. McKean, of 1352 Grant, bought a standard fire truck and then added the components he wanted. The ornamentation came from re-chromed parts salvaged from two junked trucks built in 1919 and 1935.

Garden Notes

Eyesore Covers

By M. V. CHESNUT

Occasionally in our gardening operations we run into a need to conceal or drape some unsightly structure or object in the garden which is out of character, marring the effect we are trying to create. It could be a tool shed, the bare black wall of a garage, a dead tree or tree stump, or in the case of a summer cottage, it might even be the lattice screen hiding the outdoor biffy.

Annual vines such as morning glories and climbing nasturtiums can do a grand job of softening the outlines of such eyesores, but you have to start them fresh from seed every spring, and the summer is half over before the vines have put on enough growth to do a really effective screening. The ideal solution is a really vigorous, rampant, perennial vine.

The climbing hydrangea is surprisingly good for this purpose. Hydrangea petiolaris, which is its botanical name, will grow to a height of 50 feet under ideal conditions and is admirably suited for clothing a lofty dead tree, for instance. Just plant it and let it go its own way, for it needs no training or pruning and will produce its flatfish white blossoms in June. This is one of the very few flowering vines which will do well on a north-facing wall.

Where speed is of the essence, the fastest-growing of them all is Polygonum baldschuanicum, known variously as the Russian vine or Silver Fleece vine. This one will make as much as 20 feet of growth in a single season, and if you give it lots of elbow room, it will spread in all directions and is most useful for trailing over rubbish heaps, unsightly dry banks, tree stumps and the like, as well as more vertical supports.

In late June, when the blossoms appear, the entire vine is transformed from green to pale pink, with cascades of thousands of tiny flowers. The seed pods that follow are silvery, hence the Silver Fleece name.

The bitterweet is a woody vine or climbing shrub, and the greenish blossoms are small and insignificant, but the pod-shaped seed vessels are dramatically beautiful and much sought after for floral arrangements. These pods are green at first, ripening to a golden yellow, then splitting open to reveal brilliant scarlet seeds, like rubies in a jewel box. The vine is perfectly hardy and quite at home in almost any soil or aspect.

There is one little fly in the ointment, though. Like the holly, most specimens of bitterweet are unisexual; there are boy vines and girl vines, and if you happen to plant a boy vine, you get none of those brilliantly colored seed capsules in autumn. If you plant a girl vine with no boy friend handy, again there will be none of that dramatic opening of the seed capsules to reveal their jeweled interiors. If you are very lucky, you may run across a rare vine bearing both male and female blossoms, otherwise it is best to plant at least three specimens in the hope of getting vines of both sexes, and even then you can't be sure. This vine is fairly easy to grow from seed.

House, Yes; Marriage, No

LONDON (NANA)—Jean-Paul Belmondo, or Ursula Andress or both, have bought a house in Paris and are in the throes of re-decoration. But when I asked Ursula, "Does this mean marriage," the gorgeous actress who was almost bursting through her white diaphanous gown, replied sternly, "I didn't get a divorce from John Derek (he picked it up in Mexico) to marry another man." Jean-Paul, considered perhaps the finest actor in France today, is in London with Ursula until she completes her role in Casino Royale. Before that she was with him in Tahiti where he was making a film.

Ernie Borgnine of The Dirty Dozen set and his Donna expect their second day now. This will make two in one year. Baby number one is 18 months old. At this rate Ernie will soon be in the Charlie Chaplin, Anthony Quinn class of Papa-don.

Kelr Dallas, staggering through the final scene of 2001: A Space Odyssey, moaned in the MGM cafe, "All I want to do now is to go to the nearest warm beach and lie in the sun." For that, as if going to press, he could stay in England. I've never known it so hot—in the high 70's and low 80's which is boiling for here.

Cornelia Otis Skinner has joined the cast of The Swimmer, which stars Bert Lancaster and is being directed by Frank Perry from the script of the John Cheever story, by Mrs.

Eleanor Perry, on location in the sumptuous swimming pools in Westport, Connecticut. . . Sharon Tate, delaying the finish of The Vampire Killer, via a session of flu.

Jean Crawford due in London to promote her soft drinks, sold her share of Whatever Happened to Baby Jane? to Seven Arts. Walter Winchell sold his share of Cleopatra to the same company. If both had held on to their respective percentages, they would have made more profit. "Cleo" made back its cost last year. And "Baby Jane" made millions. Bethe Davis will wind up with as much on her 10 per cent of "Baby Jane," as Joan, who had at least double the percentage. If only we knew when to hang on and when to sell.

Barbra Streisand is learning what it is like to be in a non-air-conditioned dressing room during a heat wave. She has only the remainder of this week to go in the London production of Funny Girl, then it's back to the States the next day. Four concerts in one week, then nothing until after the baby arrives. To prove the drawing power of a star like Barbra, when she is in the musical the take is $6,500 a performance. On Saturday matinees or evenings, when her understudy has been taking over, the cash at the box office has dropped to about $1,000. Barbra will be appearing this Saturday night and at the huge farewell party afterwards. Her leading man, Michael Craig, collapsed during the heat which gave his understudy a chance to go on. But, without Barbra, there is no show and that is why it is closing after Saturday night.

Morality Shrinks

SYDNEY HARRIS

A phrase greatly in use these days is "the decline of morality." I don't happen to agree that morality has "declined" in modern times; I think it has shrunk, which is a rather different thing.

Our personal standards are no lower than they have ever been. There are just as many honest, decent people as always—but their honesty rotates in a smaller circle. What the sociologists call their "area of loyalty" has become compressed.

Many people, for instance, would find it absurd to steal from a friend, a neighbor, or even a fellow citizen. But these same people think nothing of defrauding an insurance company, a department store, or any large institution.

The growing size and impersonality of such firms make it difficult for the average person to identify himself with them, to feel them as part of the fabric of the human community. And this is one of the prices we are paying for a highly industrialized society—each man performs his little task in his own sphere, and feels a kinship only with those directly associated with him.

The rise of the juvenile gang—both in number and in intensity, eloquent warning that loyalty has shrunk in the modern era. Boys have always grouped together in gangs, but never before has the distinction between the gang and the "outsiders" been so sharp, bitter and implacable.

It is worth remembering that the boys who comprise these gangs are moral creatures—within the gang. They practice the cardinal virtues, but only with each other. Within the gang, they adhere to a strict moral code of honor, faithfulness, and dependability; but toward all outsiders, they feel free to declare open or concealed warfare.

Loyalty toward the community as a whole, toward the ancient idea of the "citizen," has been losing ground among adults as well as among juveniles. It is scarcely surprising that only in those towns—now relatively rare—in which adults display an old-fashioned community spirit has the growth of juvenile delinquency been met and mastered.

Technical changes in society always bring psychological changes. As the system gets larger, the individuals get smaller in comparison; as they shrink, their loyalties diminish with them. It is indicative of our failure to cope with this looming problem that so many boys today apparently feel that nothing outside the gang is worth their deepest allegiance.

STAN DELAPLANE Loses Corporate Image

Fun While It Lasted

"You might as well fold up this corporation," said the lawyer, "because it's not making any money."

That is a curious reason indeed.

I forget how I got a corporation—it had something to do with tax loopholes.

The point is there is nothing so much fun as a corporation. I incorporated. I had stock. I made myself President and Chairman of the Board. If you want to give yourself a shot in the arm, incorporate.

The lawyer who incorporated me gave me profound and complex advice. I had a meeting once a year and got a corporate seal—a handsome thing. I put my corporate seal on all my desk blotters.

I went home and said: "We must get a corporate image." She asked: "What's that?" That's why I only made her vice-president with one share of stock. Nice kid. No business genius.

I said: "When you have a corporation, many people say, 'That corporation is nothing but a great, greedy monopoly.' So you change your corporate image. You show that your corporation is owned by widows and orphans. Widows and orphans are not great or greedy."

She said: "It sounds silly." I said: "You think A.T. and T. is silly?" Anyway, I pointed out that I, myself, am an orphan.

more, she would be a widow herself. Thus fulfilling all the requirements. But I wasn't in favor of it.

Anyway, the corporation rocked along. Not making money. But a handy thing around the house.

I had some ideas of using tax loopholes. But the lawyer said wisely: "It pierces the corporate veil."

I wasn't sure what that was. But I used it at dinner parties, and people nodded with respect.

They said, "There's a man too smart to have his corporate veil pierced!"

I tinkered around with ideas for a corporate image.

I said: "What would you think of an image that this corporation is owned by a Boy Scout?"

Clema, thirty, brave, reverent. Sue said: "But you're not a Boy Scout!"

I said: "I was a Boy Scout. Fox Patrol. I can still bark like a fox—that was the way we called to each other."

She said: "Why do you have to leave an image?"

I made a note to get a new vice-president. The job calls for imagination.

That corporation never made money, true. But it was a solid comfort to me.

If the corporation had no public image, it had a private one. Mine.

I saw the corporation in a number of ways. In a kindly way. My offspring (a stockholder) brings around the dog (also a stockholder) with a sore paw. I bound it up.

In a ruthless way. I saw it as something like U.S. Steel.

"We're raising the price a dollar a ton!" A ton of what? I don't know. Iron adjectives and wooden adverbs, I guess. That is what our corporation turned out.

So at last we unbanded the corporation. Or whatever you do to it. It went to a corporate graveyard. And I lost the image. And had to fire myself as President—without even giving myself a gold watch. And the corporate seal became a paperweight. And I had no veil to pierce. One man's tragedy.

Darker Clouds Threaten Labor Scene

By JACK GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A summer of labor turmoil may get worse. Thousands of workers—4,500 in Ontario alone—already are out on strike, a cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press showed, with the big talks still to come.

Two of three groups of unions representing Canada's $2,700 non-operating railway employees decided last week to turn down conciliation board reports and conduct strike votes across the country.

CRUCIAL STAGES

Negotiations with basic steel and nickel companies, with a total of 30,000 employees are in crucial stages. Packing house workers numbering 5,269 are to announce a strike date today in eight plants of Canada Packers Ltd.

Strikes settled in the past few days included one affecting 1,900 iron ore workers at Schefferville, Que., and Labrador City, Nfld. But new ones started. Near Toronto Thursday 500 employees of Hawker Siddeley Canada Ltd. went out in a contract dispute.

The labor situation changed almost hourly in the big labor provinces of Ontario and Quebec, making it almost impossible to give an accurate figure of the number on strike.

WILKERT walkouts complicated the picture in Ontario, which has 614,900 union workers. A labor department official in Toronto Thursday noted that two-year contracts with most unions meant that each year between 200,000 and 300,000 would be engaged in contract talks.

Organized labor is bargaining in a booming economy in which the federal government estimated Thursday the unemployed rate is a bare 3.1 of the total labor force.

Unions in some cases are out to get wage parity—or better—with the United States counterparts.

HIGH PRICE

Disputes can be costly for both labor and management. A spokesman for the United Steelworkers of America (USWA), said Thursday the union is asking its 120,000 members to make an extra contribution to meet possible strike-pay costs of $100,000 a week, should negotiations fail.

Mediators worked against time. In Toronto Thursday Carl Goldenberg, Montreal lawyer, continued discussions in an effort to settle a dispute between the United Packinghouse Workers of America (UAW) and the eight Canada Packers plants at Charlottetown, Hull, Que., Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver.

U.S. May Ease Trade Ban With Red China

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. state department said Thursday the United States might under certain circumstances relax its ban on trade with Red China.

Spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said, however, that any change would have to contribute to the national interest of the U.S. and "the peace of that area."

Tariff Lift Hinted

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Argentina's new military regime says it plans to reduce state controls on business and encourage free enterprise to help the country's ailing economy. A statement issued after a meeting of the cabinet of President Juan Carlos Onganía's did not give details of the planned measures, but informed sources said they would include the removal of curbs on foreign trade and currency restrictions.

President Johnson's speech Tuesday appealing for peaceful co-existence with Communist China did not indicate that the U.S. was preparing to lift its 15-year-old embargo on trade to that country, McCloskey said.

But, he added: "Our government has under continuing review the question of how policies and procedures governing trade with Communist China might, under certain circumstances, be changed and adjusted to contribute to the interests of the U.S. and the peace of that area."

He made it clear that the United States does not believe Communist regime would be likely to take advantage of any relaxation of the trade embargo at this time.

Pointing out that Peking in 1961 "rebuffed" the late president John F. Kennedy's offer to consider selling grain to China, McCloskey said: "We have no reason to believe that Communist China is, under present circumstances, interested in commencing trade with the United States."

Labor 'First'

Hourly Wages Discarded In Contract

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A labor agreement hailed as "a first in North America" has been signed with Aluminum Co. of Canada here.

It eliminates wages calculated on an hourly basis and puts all workers on what a union spokesman called an annual salary.

WEEKLY WAGE

Lloyd Fell, international representative of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), said the plan ensures employees a weekly wage equal to 40 times the old hourly wage.

He did not disclose current wage rates.

Overtime will still be paid on time worked in excess of 40 hours a week.

Unions involved in the agreement are Local 343, Steelworkers, and Local 54, International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (CLC).

ONE CONTRACT

Mr. Fell said two unions bargaining together for a single contract was also unique in Canadian labor negotiations.

Months of negotiation went into the new contract which provides wage increases ranging from 22 cents to 57 cents an hour over a two-year period retroactive to May 15. Vacation and welfare issues were also negotiated.

Survivor Amurao

Nurse hid under bed
while eight friends were methodically slaughtered by intruder

CHICAGO (AP) — A young killer forced his way into a quiet residential dormitory early Thursday, bound nine student nurses, then dragged eight of them one by one into other rooms and methodically strangled or stabbed them.

The ninth escaped by crouching in terror under a bed.

"My friends are dead! Help! Help! I'm the only one left alive."

The girl, hysterical during a one-hour police interview, was able to give only a fragmentary description of what happened — and of the killer. She said she could identify him.

Chicago police, beleaguered by nights of racial turmoil in another part of the city, put 40 men to work

full-time on the case and said the force could be increased five-fold at a minute's notice. (See also Page 11.)

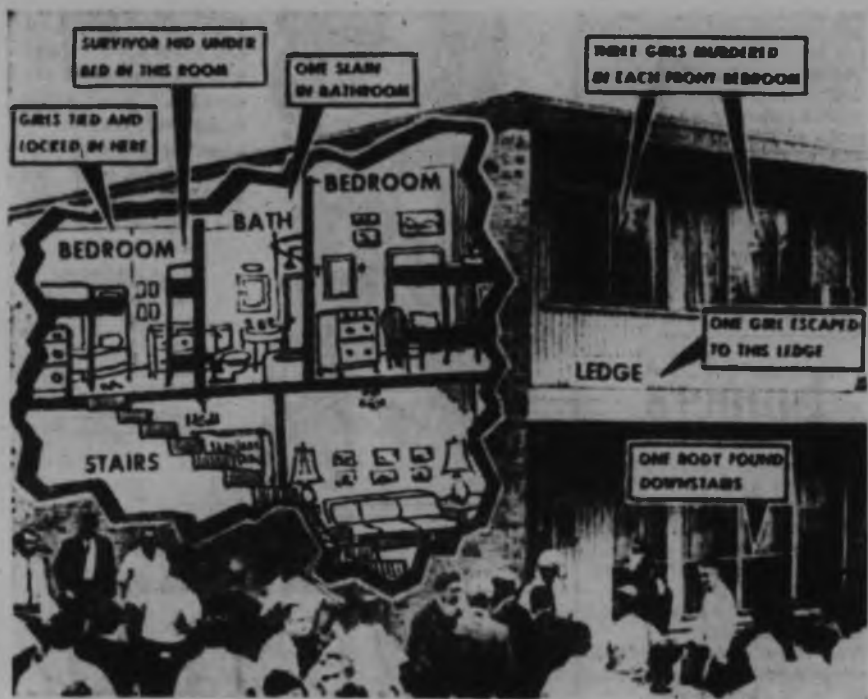

The survivor, Corazon Amurao, 23, an exchange student from The Philippines, told police the killer was a tall, blonde young man.

Can't Swallow Merger

ADMIRALS WANT OUT

OTTAWA (CP) — A major crisis broke around Defence Minister Hellyer Thursday night with reports that four rear-admirals want out of the navy over the way armed forces integration is proceeding.

One, Rear-Admiral H. G. Burchell of Ottawa, deputy chief of technical services for logistics, said in an interview he has asked for early retirement and informed sources say three others are reported to be resigning or are under threat of being retired.

They are:

● Rear-Admiral Robert P. Welland, of Ottawa, deputy chief of operations, at Canadian Forces Headquarters. He is reported to have resigned Wednesday or Thursday.

● Rear-Admiral William Landymore of Halifax, chief of Maritime Command and the Atlantic Fleet.

● Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling of Esquimaux, deputy commander of Maritime Command and commander of the Pacific Fleet, who said Thursday he would make a statement "at the appropriate time."

NOT HENNESSY

Sources said the dispute has nothing to do with the double promotion to vice-admiral of Commodore Ralph Hennessy, 47, announced last week.

They said it concerns alleged attitudes of Mr. Hellyer that if senior officers have any doubts whatsoever about service integration they should not hold command.

As rumors about the unrest spread around Parliament Hill, Conservative MPs tried to round up enough information to raise the issue on the floor of the Commons before Parliament started its summer recess.

NOTHING RAID

But the Commons closed with nothing said.

In London, Ont., Mr. Hellyer said that in the past few days at meetings in Ottawa it was indicated to him that "certain personnel" were willing to retire if given pension advantages.

He said "advantages" meant there should be no loss or reduction in pensions should anyone be fired or retire early. But Mr. Hellyer said no resignations have been submitted to him since the meetings.

Snipers Pick Off Police From Chicago Rooftops

CHICAGO (AP) — Negro gangs and policemen exchanged shots in a series of gunfights as intense violence erupted along a four-mile stretch of Chicago's West Side Thursday night.

A police captain was shot and wounded. Armored vehicles and tear gas units were called to Lake and Wood streets, where police communications said a pitched battle was in progress.

Police Capt. Francis Nolan, watch commander of the Deering District, was reported in good condition in hospital with a rifle bullet in the back. He was shot with a rifle by a sniper from a rooftop.

STREETS JAMMED

Up to 5,000 Negroes jammed the streets as more than 800 policemen attempted to restore order in the predominantly Negro neighborhood.

Negroes fired at policemen from rooftops as officers hid behind squad cars and darted from doorway to doorway, firing as they went.

Windows of most businesses operated by white persons were smashed. Armed guards stood outside a neighborhood bank.

MOTORISTS PELTED

Motorists were pelted with rocks as they drove through the area. Many car windows were broken.

Residents threw shards of glass from upper windows onto the darting policemen.

A group of policemen firing pistols from each hand chased a marauding gang of Negroes down a street.

Other policemen aimed their shots at rooftops.

CAR OVERTURNED

One gang overturned a car as it ran down the street.

Police said looting of stores was widespread.

Reporters driving through the area were pelted with rocks and bricks, but none was injured.

Hundreds of persons hurled objects from windows and roofs.

Police communications said officers in the area had called for more ammunition.

GLASS COVERED

The streets and sidewalks were strewn with glass.

"Get down, they just opened up on us," a policeman screamed at reporters as the shooting erupted.

The violence erupted for the third consecutive night on the city's West Side—near the area where several persons were injured in two nights of rioting last summer.

Disturbances had been kept

British Bank Crisis Aftermath of Strike

LONDON (UPI) — Britain Thursday raised its bank rate to a crisis level of 7 per cent, froze nearly $280,000,000 lending money and warned of even tougher measures to come to defend the pound and ward off devaluation.

Government and the Bank of England acted urgently to rescue Britain's economy from the damaging effects of the seven-week maritime strike and to stop speculative attacks on the pound.

Resort Lift Spills Two to Deaths

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A ski lift collapsed at a ski resort in the north fork of Provo Canyon Thursday night, killing two persons and seriously injuring at least six.

out a woman camp counsellor and a young girl to their deaths.

The highway patrol said a girls' convention of the LDS (Mormon) Church was underway in the area at the time. It was not immediately determined how many persons were on the lift.

Grits Will Pensions to $105

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The government Thursday was slammed for sending people back to the bad old days of the means test in its new plan for raising pensions.

The plan guarantees a monthly income of $105 for Canada's 1,100,000 old-age pensioners, who now draw a fixed pension of $75.

Health Minister MacEachen denied that the new plan involves a means test or a needs test. It is tied solely to income.

But Conservative house leader Michael Starr called it "just more waffling to mislead the old age pensioner by sending them back to the days of the means test."

"By delaying even this action on pensions until the Commons resumes in the fall, the government is shirking its responsibilities. The pension should be raised $25 a month at once."

Tory whip Eric Winkler said, "It has to be a means test or a needs test. And we have all kinds of reasons to be apprehensive because the health minister refused to spell it out."

In the Commons, New Democrat Stanley Knowles complained:

"The plan is a means test under another name."

"All the government is proposing is that old age pensioners who do not have $30 a month of other income can qualify for up to $30 a month under this supplementary provision."

But Mr. Knowles added, there are thousands of older people who have saved a little money and have income—all told—of $105-$115 a month.

"These people today are in desperate circumstances," he said, "in this legislation, there is nothing for them at all."

Mr. Winkler had tried, unsuccessfully, to force an emergency debate in the Commons on the "totally inadequate"

Powder Plant Blows

CARTHAGE, Mo. (AP) — Explosions rocked a Hercules Powder Co. plant near here Thursday and shattered windows 20 miles away, but workmen had a 20-minute warning and officials believed all escaped death.

Sheriff George Hickam said at least 12 men were in hospital. Others were treated and released.

A truck caught fire while being loaded at a powder magazine, the sheriff said. A warning whistle was blown 20 minutes before the first blast occurred.

SAVED THEM

"That's what saved them," Hickam said. "They got out so fast one of the men on the powder line took off without even reporting to his supervisor and telephoned from home that he had made it."

All residents within a three-mile area around the plant were evacuated.

Many of those injured were residents in homes within a half a mile of the plant.

The plant produces gunpowder, other explosives, chemicals and fertilizer.

The Missouri Highway Patrol declared ordered troopers from all over the state to the scene and Governor Warren E. Hearnes ordered out National Guard units, totalling 200 men, from Carthage and nearby Webb City.

The powder plant is located about three miles south of Carthage and eight miles northeast of Joplin, Mo.

The explosions shattered all windows in the courthouse in Carthage and as far as 20 miles away. Shock waves were felt in Tulsa, Okla., 125 miles to the southwest.

AT LUNCH

More than 200 employees were in the plant when the first blast came.

But most of them were at lunch in another section of the facility and got out safely.

There were three major explosions and a series of smaller ones.

Motorists reported their cars were blown from nearby highways.

Market gardener Gwynfor Evans, 54, won the Welsh constituency of Carmarthen for Plaid Cymru (Welsh nationalist).

'Walk Dog Without Fear After Midnight'

By ED DE MOCH
CHICAGO (AP) — "It's the kind of neighborhood where you can walk your dog without fear after midnight."

That was the typical description given by residents Thursday for the district in which eight young nurses were slain.

As far as the residents are concerned, it has not been a changing neighborhood. Many have lived in the same homes for 15 to 30 years and longer.

Directly behind the complex of townhouses in which the young nurses lived is a children's park and playground.

There are slides, teeter-totters, swings, benches and walks. Across the street from the townhouses is a community church. The National Maritime Union hiring hall is on another block across the street.

In the words of many residents, it is a neighborhood for the "decent middle-income Chi-lino nurse who escaped the slayings by rolling under a bed. He said he ran into the street looking for a police squad car.

Hall said he and his wife played pinocle Wednesday night with Laura Bazoni, who was the housemother for the slain nurses and for 16 other nurses who live in adjoining townhouses.

"The game broke up at about 9:30 p.m. and my wife and I sat around until about 10 and then went to bed," Hall said.

"I heard nothing more the rest of the night until I heard the nurse screaming this (Thursday) morning."

WALKED DOG: Herb Brett, a salesman residing a half block from the townhouse complex, said he and his wife returned home about midnight Wednesday night.

"About an hour later, I took my dog out for a walk and brought him to the park right behind the apartment," Brett said. "I never saw or heard a thing. You can walk your dog after midnight in this neighborhood and never worry about a thing."

NURSES QUIET: Ben Bernstein, an insurance salesman who has lived a block away from the townhouse for 14 years, said the nurses were so quiet and well behaved "you'd never know they were living there."

The hospital ran a bus service between the townhouses and the hospital, about a mile apart. The student nurses live in the townhouses and the regular staff nurses reside in the nursing home adjoining the hospital.

'Never Liked Suffering'

CHICAGO (UPI)—Pamela Lee Wilkerson, 20, one of the eight student nurses slain Thursday, wrote three years in her application for nurses' training.

"I have always wanted to be a nurse because I never liked to see people suffer."

Another victim, Patricia Ann Matusek, 20, Chicago, wrote that she had wanted to be a nurse ever since she could remember because "the joy one gets from helping others cannot be taken away."

DIFFICULTIES: The girls, who were only a few weeks short of their goals, were found slain in their two-story townhouse apartment. They had been stabbed, strangled and shot.

They were part of a class of 111 student nurses at South Chicago Community Hospital, and representative of the thousands of young women who stream to Chicago's medical centers each year for training in a profession in which difficult hours and dangerous travel go hand in hand.

"We don't want to exaggerate the dangers but we are very conscious of the need for security," said Mrs. Anne Zimmerman, executive administrator of the Illinois Nurses Association.

"The white uniform, white stockings and shoes point nurses out as targets," she said.

"We tell our members not to wear their uniforms to and from hospitals," Mrs. Zimmerman said.

She said the mass murder focused attention on the need for security around hospitals, "but how did those girls know what was upstairs? This is a case of inside surveillance as well."

ENGAGED: The killings were a double tragedy for the family of Mary Ann Jordan, 21, Chicago. Her brother, Philip, was engaged to Susan Farra, 21, another victim whose body was found, stabbed repeatedly, in a hallway between the second floor bedrooms.

Two of the other victims also were engaged.

Nina Schmale, 21, Wheaton, Ill., was the daughter of Dr. John Schmale, Jr., resident physician on the staff of the West Side Veterans Administration Hospital.

Her fiancé, Peter McNamee, 23, Wheaton, heard of the mass slaying on the car radio.

"Just two weeks ago, I gave Nina Jo an engagement ring. Last Monday we spent boating on the Fox River. I last saw her at 10:30 p.m. Monday. She was all excited about her approaching graduation," McNamee said.

Bizarre Crimes Recalled

NEW YORK (AP)—Few mass murders of recent times have equalled in horror the killing of eight nurses in a Chicago residence hall Thursday.

A classic case of senseless mass killing occurred on a quiet street in Camden, N.J., Sept. 6, 1949.

On that day Howard Uhl, a mild-mannered, Bible-reading

Second World War veteran, took a souvenir German pistol and went on a rampage in the street, gunning down 13 strangers.

Uhl is still confined in the state hospital in Trenton, N.J.

MASSACRE: For sheer cold-bloodedness, few mass murders rival the 1929 Chicago gangster slayings known as the St. Valentine's Day massacre.

Seven members of the gang ruled by George (Bugs) Moran were waiting for Moran in their headquarters when four or five men, two of them in police uniforms, came in and ordered the seven Moran molls to line up against a wall. The victims meekly complied, thinking it a routine police raid.

SEVEN LAY DEAD: A few moments later the seven lay dead, riddled by machine-gun bullets.

The Al Capone gang, fighting Moran for control of bootlegging, was blamed for the slaughter, but the killers were never caught.

One of the most terrifying stories of mass murder was told in November, 1961, by a little girl rescued after 3½ days at sea on a cork raft.

Eleven-year-old Terry Jo Duperrault told Miami investigators her parents, Arthur and Jean Duperrault of Green Bay, Wis., and her brother, were slaughtered aboard the ketch Bluebell by Capt. Julian Harvey, who also killed his wife, Mary.

Harvey had been rescued earlier in a dinghy with the dead body of Terry Jo's sister, Renee, 7. After he learned that Terry Jo had been rescued, he committed suicide.

Thursday's tragedy is added to a list of bizarre crimes in Chicago that includes the "lapse murder," one of a series of killings by William Heursen in the mid-1940s.

Heursen, who maintained a "B" average at the University of Chicago while making his way through a night-time foray, stabbed one woman to death.

"For heaven's sake catch me beat and shot another to death before I kill more, I cannot control myself, killed and dis-trust myself."

Port Moody: Mrs. Anna Whitby, 28, from nearby Port Moody, had gone to the home to nurse and patch her son. She was strangled with her own slacks.

RCMP investigators said Thursday that a man came out of the bush with a knife and threatened his mother.

"After some conversation with her, he pulled a knife on her which he used to threaten her to force her away from the car toward the edge of the bush area where he subsequently assaulted her," an RCMP statement said.

They said the knife—a common kitchen paring knife with a 2½-inch blade—was found on the ground near the scene of the murder.

The nude body of Mrs. Whitby was found Friday after the victim's six-year-old son, Murray, was discovered wandering in the dead-end lane.

Beaten Stewardess Tells Of Apartment Murder

SEATTLE (UPI)—Airline stewardess Lisa Wick, 20, Thursday gave police a description of the assailant who bludgeoned her stewardess roommate Lonnie Trumbull, 20, to death and left Miss Wick brutally beaten.

Miss Trumbull was found dead and Miss Wick near death in their apartment June 23 by a third stewardess roommate, Joyce Rowe, 20.

Miss Wick, who has gradually recovered a little after undergoing brain surgery for her injuries, told police detectives that the assailant was a white man, about 30 years old, about five-foot-10 and about 165 pounds. She said he had thinning blonde hair.

LONG TALK: It was the first time since the attack that Miss Wick had been able to talk extensively to officers.

Miss Wick was able to help officers compile a composite picture of the attacker and the picture was being circulated through law enforcement transmission facilities and through wire services, newspapers and television stations.

Miss Wick's description of the assailant was the first big break in the case on which law enforcement officers have been working around the clock.

REWARD: Miss Trumbull and Miss Wick, both of Portland, recently begun working as stewardesses for United Air Lines.

The air line has offered a $10,000 reward for information leading to the capture and conviction of the attacker.

Detective Sgt. Herb Arnold was asked if he thought there was any connection between Miss Trumbull's slaying and the mass killing of eight student nurses in Chicago Thursday.

NO SEX: "We do not believe there is any connection between the Chicago homicides and the homicide here of Lonnie Trumbull," Arnold replied.

Neither Miss Trumbull nor Miss Wick was attacked sexually.

Miss Wick said the lights were out when the assault took place and it was not immediately explained how she was able to give such a detailed description. But talking about and they did not police said they were satisfied want to press her at this time that she knew what she was for further details.

Seattle police released this composite drawing after Lisa Wick, 20, United Air Lines stewardess, described man who beat her and killed her roommate Lonnie Trumbull in their Seattle apartment June 23.—(AP)

Knife Menaced Murder Victim

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police said Thursday Mrs. Anna Whitby was threatened by a man with a knife before she was slain a week ago in a secluded "lovers lane" in Coquitlam.

They said the knife—a common kitchen paring knife with a 2½-inch blade—was found on the ground near the scene of the murder.

RCMP investigators said Thursday that a man came out of the bush with a knife and threatened his mother.

"After some conversation with her, he pulled a knife on her which he used to threaten her to force her away from the car toward the edge of the bush area where he subsequently assaulted her," an RCMP statement said.

They said the knife—a common kitchen paring knife with a 2½-inch blade—was found on the ground near the scene of the murder.

The nude body of Mrs. Whitby was found Friday after the victim's six-year-old son, Murray, was discovered wandering in the dead-end lane.

District Zoning Given Airing

More than 100 residents of Langford, Colwood, Glen Lake, Metehosin and Happy Valley Wednesday night had a first-hand explanation of new zoning regulations proposed for their districts.

Six planning and building inspection officials explained that while proposed zoning changes have been published, public hearings will be held before they go into effect.

Included among the proposals is one which would create a commercial belt along Highway 1A. Several elderly people at the meeting said the proposed amendment which would require new homes set off the street 25 feet would make snow removal difficult.

Others didn't like a proposal which would give the building inspector authority to enter a home at any time. They thought he should have to give some sort of a warning.

The amendments are proposed for Community Planning Area No. 4.

and is sponsored by Simpson's-Sears stores.

The show will be in the Empress Hotel's Georgian Lounge from Aug. 3 to 10. Mr. Price will be here Aug. 8 and 9.

With him he will have approximately 500 paintings and more than 25 sculptures worth a total of about $300,000, said a spokesman for the show on Wednesday.

Admission is free. Prices of the art range from $17.50 to around $20,000, with the average running between $100 and $400.

FEATURED ARTISTS

Among the Canadian artists represented in the show will be Harold Town, Graham Coughtry, Jean Paul Riopel and Victoria's Donald Harvey.

The Vincent Price collection is on its fourth tour of Canada, but this will be only the second time it has appeared here.

Mary Grant Price, wife of Vincent and a native of Victoria, is expected to accompany him. She is a Hollywood set and costume designer and a knowledgeable art critic.

Building Condemned By 'Instant' Board

City council appointed itself an instant local health board Thursday, condemning a Government Street building as being unfit for human habitation, reported the fact to itself and resumed its normal business—all within five minutes.

The bit of legislative legerdemain became necessary when an eviction order—covering 1802-1828 government street—was varied into the maw of civic government a month ago, and wasn't heard from again.

The health board motion announced that the building "has become, by reason of the want of cleanliness and other

The board will now issue a notice to occupants of the building which will require them to move out within 60 days after receipt.

At an earlier meeting, city council agreed to ban the premises as unfit for human habitation but no action was taken because of a "breakdown in communications."

Gray's Columbia ready for launching in Clayoquot Sound

Fort's Ruins Found

Historic Meares Island Site 174 Years Old

By GEORGE NICHOLSON

A group of Tofino men have found the remains of a historical fort built on Meares Island in the winter of 1791-92. It was the winter quarters on Clayoquot Sound, on Vancouver Island's west coast, of the American trading ship Columbia and the site of Fort Defiance.

In the winter of 1791-92 that Capt. Robert Gray wintered his ship, the Columbia, in Clayoquot Sound, and while there he built the schooner Adventure, the second vessel to be constructed on this coast north of Mexico.

The first was the schooner Northwest America, which Meares built and launched at Friendly Cove, Nootka, in 1778.

Since the Indians were troublesome, to protect his men from possible attack while building the schooner, Gray built a fort which he named Fort Defiance.

Last week, a group of young Tofino men, headed by Kenneth Gibson, reported that after months spent searching the shores of Meares Island for clues, they found the site.

Their report, along with charcoal, bricks and other exhibits found at the site, have been sent to Dr. Willard Ireland, provincial archaeologist, for scientific examination.

After leaving Meares, he went south along the coast to discover and name (after his ship) the Columbia River Gray's Harbour, Wash., also was named after himself.

Historical records indicate only that Gray built his fort on the shores of Meares Island and moored the Columbia nearby, but all descriptions of the actual site are vague.

Over the years, noted Canadian and American historians endeavored to pinpoint the site but always without success.

Tug Sinks, Pair Saved

NANAIMO — A 55-foot tug rolled over and sank Thursday morning in the waters off Nanaimo harbor.

The tug Ganer, owned by Nanaimo Marine Services, was towing the self-dumping barge Island Yarder into Nanaimo harbor when a tow line between the two craft suddenly tightened, and the tug rolled over.

Nanaimo Marine Services manager Ian MacLeod said Capt. Jim Corfield and deckhand Vern Fuller, both of Nanaimo, jumped into the water and were rescued by a passing pleasure craft.

The accident occurred in more than 300 feet of water and Mr. MacLeod said the water is too deep to salvage the craft.

Mr. MacLeod said the value of the tug was approximately $60,000 and it was fully insured.

O'Neal's Charge Brings Denial

Pulp Union Rival 'Intimidates' Voters

NANAIMO — An official of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Workers union charged Thursday that workers voting on a new contract proposal at Harmac pulp mill are being intimidated.

Pat O'Neal, regional organizer for the International, claimed that upwards of eight members of the rival local 8 of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Workers' Union have picketed a ballot box at the mill's main gate and have been besetting everyone who has tried to vote.

"There's no doubt their intimidation worked because many ended up voting at our union office so they would not be fingered," Mr. O'Neal said. An official of the rival union denied the intimidation charge.

The International is involved in a jurisdictional dispute with Local 8, which claims to have signed up nearly all the 1,000 workers. "Local 8 has not been certified by the Labor Relations Board, and the International is certified, and they can't sign any agreement," Mr. O'Neal said.

Local 8 official Reg Young announced earlier the circulation of a petition among the workers to try to speed up government certification.

"The local 8 executive is so desperate they are gambling with the security of the membership for their own ends," Mr.

O'Neal said. "They have no legal rights, they are not certified, and they can't sign any agreement."

Local 8 president Gordon Wickham replied: "We were simply passing out pamphlets and getting names on the petition. The men had indicated which union they want to represent them, and the only thing the International has is the certification."

He said local 695 has not held meetings with the membership Friday afternoon.

Local 695 president Ken Warde of Nanaimo said earlier that results of the ballot should be released Thursday night but Mr. O'Neal said the announcement must come from Stan Green of Vancouver, the B.C. vice-president of the International.

Mr. Green is in Montreal and is expected back in Vancouver Friday afternoon.

Telegrams to MPs Asked $100

Means Test Excluded In Pensioner's Plea

PARKSVILLE—Ottawa's proposal Thursday to raise old age pensions to $105 a month came only a day after the B.C. Old Age Pensioners' Association fired off telegrams asking for more money.

At a meeting here Wednesday, the pensioners asked for payments of $100 a month without a means test.

Health Minister MacEachen's proposed legislation would increase the current fixed pension of $75 a month to $105 without what he termed would be means or needs tests.

After hearing the news Thursday, W. W. C. O'Neill, president of the Parksville branch of the pensioners, said he was pleased about any proposal which would give senior citizens more money. "If it benefits most of the pensioners, of course I'd be happy," he added.

Five hundred were at the meeting, held in conjunction with a picnic.

Their telegram was sent to Prime Minister Pearson and all other federal political leaders. Mrs. F. J. Dunn of Mission City won the prize as oldest woman present. She is almost 92. Eighty-nine-year-old William Betsell of Nanaimo was oldest man at the picnic. Mrs. N. Hawley, Aldergrove, won the prize for most grandchildren, a total of 51.

Comox Board Asked To Add to Functions

COURTENAY — The Comox Valley regional board has found itself facing a request for three additional functions to be added to its letters patent.

Functions of parks and recreation, planning, garbage collection and operation of Glacier View Home were discussed at a regional district directors meeting this week.

A letter over the signature of Henry Schellinck, chairman of the parks and recreation steering committee, asked for inclusion of parks and recreation as a function of the regional district. Directors agreed to investigate the matter.

Another request from the city of Courtenay asked that planning be included in the letters patent and the regional board decided to make further inquiries before acting on it.

The board agreed to call for bids on garbage collection to ascertain the cost if such collection is taken over on a regional basis. If costs are not prohibitive, the letters patent would probably be amended to include this as a function.

DUNCAN — Funeral services will be held here Saturday for Michael Allan Marrs, who died of injuries suffered in a logging accident at Kennedy Lake July 11.

He was born at Duncan in 1936 and received his schooling here. For the past 11 years, he worked in the bush. He was a former member of the RCAF.

He is survived by his wife, Sharon; a son, Shane, 5; a daughter, Rebecca, 3; his mother, Mrs. Lillian Allard, Duncan; a brother and five sisters.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. from the Hirst Funeral Chapel.

COURTENAY — Lance Brazier, who recently formed a one-man campaign to have an old wooden bridge on McKelvie Road replaced, can rest more easily if he accepts the word of Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell.

Mr. Campbell said Thursday that the bridge replacement was in this year's estimates and it would be up by September.

COURTENAY — Only a repentant attitude saved Arthur Wallace Leighton from jail when he was convicted July 14 of assaulting a peace officer.

Deputy Sheriff John Forsythe had gone to the accused's business place to serve a warrant and was pushed out the door. He said he showed Leighton in his identification and the man became arrogant and swearing.

Leighton said he did not know what the warrant was for and when he learned the details he wrote a cheque.

He told the court he had been under great strain and had several upsets but had not intended to hurt the man.

Magistrate John Ryland said only his repentant attitude had saved him from jail because "the law could not be treated contemptuously."

DUNCAN — Fines totalling $30 were assessed against Terry Sidney Jordan of Duncan who pleaded guilty to charges of causing a disturbance by using obscene language and common assault.

Police said with two companions, he entered a beer parlor and after management refused to serve them beer, a row started.

Jordan grabbed a bartender by the neck and a tray with glasses of beer broke on the floor. One of his companions, Kenneth Foote of Duncan, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by using obscene language and he was fined $30.

DUNCAN — Do monkeys and parrots shiver in the temperatures of Vancouver Island?

Jim Oyen, owner of the Duncan Zoo, says "No, but I have many visitors who believe they do."

Except for cold-blooded reptiles which need steady warmth to stay healthy, birds and mammals from the tropics and subtropics have become accustomed to the seasonal changes of this country.

Mr. Oyen said to give the animals from warmer regions a chance of survival here, they should be imported during late spring, giving them sufficient time to get used to the colder weather.

"I have one good example of African animals wintering well even in very low temperatures in Canada. Alberta Game Farm keeps those animals outside throughout the winter and I have seen African animals being born in 40 below temperatures at the game farm near Edmonton."

While Duncan enjoyed a fairly hot summer day Wednesday, a zoo visitor remarked to Mr. Oyen: "That poor parrot must be cold here."

"There are many people like that and I always explain to them they could not be further from the truth."

He said tropical animals are usually bothered by intense heat and most of them rest during the day and only find relief when they leave their shelter at night to find food. "In many years of working with animals from the tropics, I found the climate on Vancouver Island is well suited to them and even here on a hot day they seem to be exhausted but they are very much alive on cooler days and even in crisp winter weather."

The idea of having animals in the zoo in a constantly warm building is old-fashioned, and the practice was abandoned by modern zoos 30 years ago, he explained.

With reptiles, it is a different matter again because the slightest frost will kill them.

Two years ago, during a severe winter, Mr. Oyen had to revive his crocodiles by dumping them into the bathtub after the oil heater in the reptile house broke down and the temperatures approached freezing point.

One of the main attractions at the Duncan Zoo, Sammy the Seal, has a different problem.

Although severe heat will not kill him, he was uncomfortable last summer during a heat wave. Mr. Oyen provided him with ice every day.

COURTENAY — The Comox Valley will be invaded this weekend by 500 persons who will arrive to take part in or watch the Pacific Northwest Archery Championships.

The event has been officially billed as a Centennial attraction.

Competitors will travel from B.C. points, Alberta, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana to defend their titles.

A highlight of the three-day championships will be the performance of Gene Cowan, Portland, who will attempt to defend his men's open championship, won after setting records at Boise, Idaho, last year.

VANCOUVER — William Saxton, 57, who suffered head injuries in an accident at MacMillan Bloedel's Kennedy Lake division a week ago, remains in poor condition in hospital here.

Help! I'm Only One Left!

Survivor Amurao

Nurse hid under bed
while eight friends were methodically slaughtered by intruder

CHICAGO (AP) — A young killer forced his way into a quiet residential dormitory early Thursday, bound nine student nurses, then dragged eight of them one by one into other rooms and methodically strangled or stabbed them.

The ninth escaped by crouching in terror under a bed.

"My friends are dead! Help! Help! I'm the only one left alive."

The girl, hysterical during a one-hour police interview, was able to give only a fragmentary description of what happened — and of the killer. She said she could identify him.

Chicago police, beleaguered by nights of racial turmoil in another part of the city, put 40 men to work

full-time on the case and said the force could be increased five-fold at a minute's notice. (See also Page 11.)

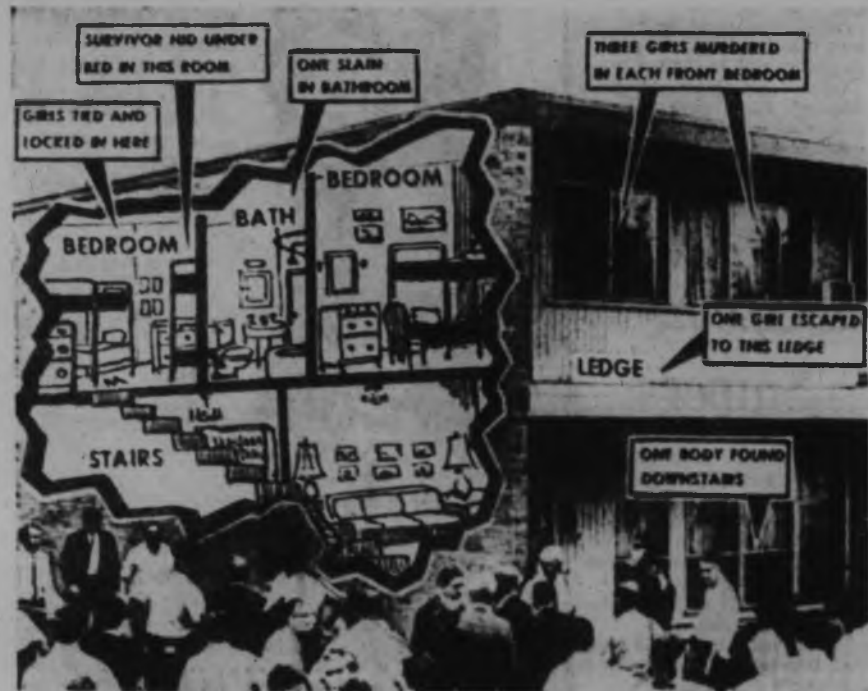

The survivor, Corazon Amurao, 23, an exchange student from The Philippines, told police the killer was a tall, blonde young man.

ADMIRALS WANT OUT FROM HELLYER PLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — A major crisis broke around Defence Minister Hellyer Thursday night with reports that four rear-admirals want out of the navy over the way armed forces integration is proceeding.

One, Rear-Admiral H. G. Burchell of Ottawa, deputy chief of technical services for logistics, said in an interview he has asked for early retirement and informed sources say three others are reported to be resigning or are under threat of being retired.

The others are:

• Rear-Admiral Robert P. Welland, of Ottawa, deputy chief of operations, at Canadian Forces Headquarters. He is reported to have resigned Wednesday or Thursday.

• Rear-Admiral William Landymore of Halifax, chief of Maritime Command and the Atlantic Fleet.

• Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling of Esquimalt, deputy commander of Maritime Command and commander of the Pacific Fleet, who said Thursday he may make a statement "at a more opportune time."

NOT HENNESSY

Sources said the dispute has nothing to do with the double promotion to vice-admiral of Commodore Ralph Hennessy, 47, announced last week.

They said it concerns alleged attitudes of Mr. Hellyer that if senior officers have any doubts whatsoever about service integration they should not hold command.

As rumors about the unrest spread around Parliament Hill, Conservative MPs tried to round up enough information to raise the issue on the floor of the Commons before Parliament started its summer recess.

NOTHING SAID

But the Commons closed with nothing said. In London, Ont., Mr. Hellyer said that in the past few days at meetings in Ottawa it was indicated to him that "certain personnel" were willing to retire if given pension advantages.

He said "advantages" meant there should be no loss or reduction in pensions should anyone be fired or retire early.

But Mr. Hellyer said no resignations have been submitted to him since the meetings.

BULLETIN

CHICAGO (UPI) — A 14-year-old Negro girl was struck by a stray bullet and killed and another Negro man was killed early today while police battled roving Negro gangs of rioters in Chicago's west side slums. A 13-year-old Negro boy was in critical condition in another shooting incident.

CHICAGO (AP) — Negro gangs and policemen exchanged shots in a series of gunfights as intense violence erupted along a four-mile stretch of Chicago's West Side Thursday night.

A police captain was shot and wounded. (See earlier story, Page 7.)

Armored vehicles and tear gas units were called to Lake and Wood streets, where police communications said a pitched battle was in progress.

Police Capt. Francis Nolan, watch commander of the Deering District, was reported in good condition in hospital with a rifle bullet in the back. He was shot with a rifle by a sniper from a rooftop.

Up to 5,000 Negroes jammed the streets as more than 900 policemen attempted to restore order in the predominantly Negro neighborhood.

Negroes fired at policemen from rooftops as officers hid behind squad cars and darted from doorway to doorway, firing as they went.

Windows of most businesses operated by white persons were smashed. Armed guards stood outside a neighborhood bank.

MOTORISTS FELT

Motorists were pelted with rocks as they drove through the area. Many car windows were broken. Residents threw shards of glass from upper windows onto the darting policemen.

A group of policemen firing pistols from each hand chased a marauding gang of Negroes down a street.

Other policemen aimed their shots at rooftops. One gang overturned a car as it ran down the street.

Police said looting of stores was widespread.

Reporters driving through the area were pelted with rocks and bricks, but none was injured. Hundreds of persons hurled objects from windows and roofs.

Police communications said officers in the area had called for more ammunition.

GLASS COVERED

The streets and sidewalks were strewn with glass. "Get down, they just opened up on us," a policeman screamed at reporters as the shooting erupted.

The violence erupted for the third consecutive night on the city's West Side—near the area where several persons were injured in two nights of rioting last summer.

Disturbances had been kept

British Bank Crisis Aftermath of Strike

LONDON (UPI) — Britain Thursday raised its bank rate to a crisis level of 7 per cent, froze nearly $280,000,000 leading money and warned of even tougher measures to come to defend the pound and ward off devaluation. (See story page 9).

Government and the Bank of England acted urgently to rescue Britain's economy from the damaging effects of the seven-week maritime strike and to stop speculative attacks on the pound.

Resort Lift Spills Two to Deaths

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A ski lift collapsed at a ski resort in the north fork of Provo Canyon Thursday night, killing two persons and seriously injuring at least six.

The ski lift caught on a pulley high over jagged rocks spilling out a woman camp counselor and a young girl to their deaths.

The highway patrol said a girls' convention of the LDS (Mormon) Church was underway in the area at the time. It was not immediately determined how many persons were on the lift.

Grits Will Raise Pensions to $105

By RON OLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The government Thursday was slammed for sending people back to the bad old days of the means test in its new plan for raising pensions.

The plan guarantees a monthly income of $105 for Canada's 1,100,000 old-age pensioners, who now draw a fixed pension of $75.

Health Minister MacEachen denied that the new plan involves a means test or a needs test. It is tied solely to income.

But Conservative house leader Michael Starr called it "just more waffling to mislead the old age pensioner by sending them back to the days of the means test."

"By delaying even this action on pensions until the Commons resumes in the fall, the government is shirking its responsibilities. The pension should be raised $25 a month at once."

Tory whip Eric Winkler said "It has to be a means test or a needs test. And we have all kinds of reasons to be apprehensive because the health minister refused to spell it out."

In the Commons, New Democrat Stanley Knowles complained: "The plan is a means test under another name."

"All the government is proposing is that old age pensioners who do not have $30 a month of other income can qualify for up to $30 a month under this supplementary provision."

But Mr. Knowles added, there are thousands of older people who have saved a little money and have income—all told—of $105-$115 a month.

"These people today are in desperate circumstances," he said. "In this legislation, there is nothing for them at all."

Mr. Winkler had tried, unsuccessfully, to force an emergency debate in the Commons on the "totally inadequate"

Powder Plant Blows

CARTHAGE, Mo. (AP) — Explosions rocked a Hercules Powder Co. plant near here Thursday and shattered windows 20 miles away, but workmen had a 20-minute warning and officials believed all escaped death.

Sheriff George Hickam said at least 12 men were in hospital. Others were treated and released.

SAVED THEM

"That's what saved them," Hickam said. "They got out so fast one of the men on the powder line took off without even reporting to his supervisor and telephoned from home that he had made it."

All residents within a three-mile area around the plant were evacuated.

Many of those injured were residents in homes within a half a mile of the plant.

The plant produces gunpowder, other explosives, chemicals and fertilizer.

The Missouri Highway Patrol declared ordered troops from all over the state to the scene and Governor Warren E. Hearnes ordered out National Guard units, totalling 200 men, from Carthage and nearby Webb City.

The powder plant is located about three miles south of Carthage and eight miles northeast of Joplin, Mo.

The explosions shattered all windows in the courthouse in Carthage and as far as 20 miles away. Shock waves were felt in Tulsa, Okla., 125 miles to the southwest.

Nationalist Shocks Labor

CARMARTHEN, Wales (Reuters) — The Welsh nationalist party Thursday won its first House of Commons seat in a shock by-election victory here over the governing Labor party's candidate.

Market gardener Gwynfor Evans, 54, won the Welsh constituency of Carmarthen for Plaid Cymru (Welsh nationalists).

The result was a heavy defeat for Labor, which had a 9,333 majority here in the March general election.

No Prospects In Air Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Little progress was reported Thursday in talks to end America's biggest airline strike, and prospects for an early settlement remained gloomy.
